

MARBRITE
THE VOGUE IN COLOURED GLASS
Marbrite is a recent discovery used in the decoration of walls, in place of tiling.
The effects produced are extremely pleasant. It being possible to blend a wide range of beautiful colours.
By using Marbrite, panels can be made to represent jade, or bathrooms transformed by means of the exquisite colours available.

MOTHER CALLS IT MIRACLE

Child—always fretful, never hungry—
Now has Big Appetite . . . Is Sturdy and Strong

Doctors Advise This Natural
Way to Make Child Hungry
...Restore Buoyant Health!

Almost all child ailments that cause mothers so much worry are due to just one thing—authorities call it the intestinal absorption of poisons. This distressing condition occurs even when child's habits may seem regular. The stomach is upset. The child won't eat . . . becomes nervous and cross.

Now this insidious condition can be corrected naturally and quickly with a little Castoria which tastes so very good, children beg for it.

This remarkable preparation swiftly purges the system, banishes poisons, settles the stomach and improves digestion. Then Nature does the rest. Appetite returns. Disposition improves. And soon the child is again sturdy, healthy and sunny.

Let Castoria take care of your child's health. Give it at the first warning sign of trouble. Results will surprise you.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here's What's Smart to Wear on Dry Side of the Waves

LINEN AND NOVELTY COTTONS LEAD THE FABRICS

BY MARIAN YOUNG

SLACKS and backless shirts, dresses that button down front or back, pajamas with halter necklines, shorts in the new longer lengths—all these are what well-dressed young women will wear on bathing beaches this summer. Linen and novelty cottons are the outstanding fabrics for beach apparel and the vivid colours—blue, red, yellow, orange, green, purple and the like—are getting first place with dark, solid ones such as brown and navy blue running second.

Slacks have a debonair look about them that smart women simply love. Slimly tailored about the hips, flaring at ankles and cut for lounging-in-the-sun-comfort, they make a girl want to spend her entire vacation in beach clothes.

A buttoned-down-the-back beach dress of natural-coloured terry cloth is worn with a synthetic silk cape in navy, light blue and white stripes.

Another beach ensemble (right) that spells smartness plus comfort includes a natural-coloured terry cloth beach dress which buttons down the back and a cape of synthetic silk striped in navy, light blue and white with white trimming.

The sash that marks the normal waistline is of navy blue taffeta.

If you have a penchant for shorts, look at the ensembles that include blouses, shirts and skirts. The blouses are nice enough to wear with separate skirts when golfing or hiking and the skirts which button down the front can be removed easily. The shorts longer than formerly, are made with side pleats that allow for comfort when walking, playing tennis or lounging on the beach. If cotton doesn't strike your fancy, look at flannel ones with linen tops. These, of course, do not have matching skirts.

This two-piece beach outfit of bright blue linen includes slimly tailored slacks and a backless vestee top with tailored collar.

CHAPTER XLVII

Two girls were at lunch in a downtown restaurant. One was thin and eye-glassed and her blue suit wore an air of primness. The other had a merry, mischievous face, crowned by a bleached mop of permanently waved hair.

"You know what happened," she urged the other, spooning up her tea cream eagerly. "Tell me—don't be such a meanie. I'm dying to know."

"Honestly I don't," said the girl in blue whose name was Catherine Miles. "Honestly—I haven't an idea. The only thing was when I came in that morning I heard Mr. Lawrence say, 'Well, I'm sorry to hear you're leaving us, Miss Gray.'"

"That's good." The blond girl finished the last of her sandwich and reddened her lips with the aid of a small pocket mirror. "He's the only one who was sorry, I can tell you. She should have been eased out long ago. What I don't know about that one . . . She looked mysterious, compressing her lips."

"Well, you know lots more than you pretend to, only you're afraid to spill it," she taunted. "I heard a few things myself. That morning—the one after Mr. Weaver got back from his western trip—he stormed in like a hurricane. I was in Whiffy's office, right next to hers, and I heard plenty though I wasn't supposed to. He said to her, 'Where's that telegram?'"

Miss Catherine Miles leaned forward, putting down her cup of tea in her excitement. "He said that!"

"Yes, he did. And he was mad clean through. I thought he was going to chew the partitions. 'Where's that telegram?' he said and she said, 'I don't know what you're talking about.' Then he laid into her. He said he was going straight to Mr. Lawrence and she said, 'You don't dare.' He laughed and said why didn't he? And she said if he did she'd tell he'd been coming up to her apartment at all hours and drinking her liquor and pestering her."

"She said that!" Miss Miles went crimson all over. "Why, the nerve of her. I don't believe a word of it."

"Well, anyhow, he laughed again and said he wouldn't have believed it of her, though he'd been warned before what she was like. 'I thought you were just a good scout,' he said or something like that. 'I didn't know you were a snake in the grass. You tell Lawrence any lies like that and you'll be finished in this business for life.'"

"Then she started to hedge, sort of, and said naturally a girl didn't want any trouble and what did he want her to do? He had all the breaks, she said. A man always did. He didn't pay any attention to that. You could see she thought being pathetic was going to break him all up or something. He said, 'You be out of here to-morrow morning or else.'"

"So she resigned," breathed Catherine Miles. "She didn't dare do anything else," announced the girl with the tawny hair with relish. "And that's a case of good riddance if you ask me."

At Pier 57 in the heat of mid-day a limousine nosed its way among the trucks and taxis, sliding up to the curb.

"Empire sailing?" Two porters jumped on the running board and a uniformed chauffeur said something in a low voice to them. They tell away and a lady emerged from the depth of the car. She was slim, she was very beautiful, she was young. Everything about her, from the many bags in their pseudo casings to the pearls around her slim throat, looked costly. She looked around quickly, as though fearing notice. Then, followed by the chauffeur and the men, lugging bags, she disappeared into the crowd.

The August sun beat down upon the decks of the huge liner. The lady came up the gangplank, looking neither to the right nor the left. A man in blue, with gilt braid on his officer's cap, saluted her and led her to the elevator. Her suite was on A deck. There was a sitting room, all delicate French furniture and damask hangings. The bedroom beyond was a blue and rose symphony and beyond could be glimpsed a gargantuan bath, all chrome plate and gleaming tile.

The lady was obviously nervous. "You wait on the pier for Mr. Hotelling," she instructed the chauffeur. "Give orders that no one is to be admitted to my suite. There may be newspaper people."

"Certainly, madam. It's too bad you didn't bring Davies. She could have fended them off for you."

She shook her head, dismissing him.

The sound of hurried footsteps went past. On the deck two or three young people, gay in sport clothes, passed one damask draped window. The woman, pacing nervously to and fro, could hear suppressed giggles. "The bridal suite," she heard someone say. And she winced.

The chauffeur came back with some message. As she wrote out a direction for him, a knock came at the door.

"See if that's the steward," the woman said. "Let him in. I sent for him."

But the man at the door was not in uniform. He wore careless gray tweeds and a battered hat. He said, "I'm from the Globe, Mrs. Bliss."

She uttered a little cry. "No reporters. I said I would see no reporters." She shrank in her chair. "If you'd just make a statement? Is it true that your reported engagement to Mr. Broughton is broken?"

"I won't answer. You have no right to break into my suite this way. I'll complain to the captain, Grisson."

The chauffeur elbowed his way into the passage. "Mrs. Bliss says you're to ease out! Get that!"

The man in gray gave no sign he had heard, but continued imperturbably with his barrage of questions. "Is it true that Broughton's common law wife threatened you with a suit for alienation? What are your plans?"

"No statement," no statement," the woman chattered, her eyes flashing. "Oh, Uncle Morgan, send this man away!" This to a dignified gentleman whose white hair and pince-nez appeared over the shoulder of the newspaperman.

"You're annoying my niece, sir. Please take yourself off or, by the Lord Harry, I'll give you a whaling!" Morgan Hotelling raised his ebony stick.

Lila Bliss sank back against the cushions. "Why do they persecute me like this? What have I done?"

"Hush, hush, my dear. Don't let the bouncer hear you."

"He's gone, madam," Grisson said. "Is there anything more I can do?"

"Nothing." She had her handkerchief to her eyes.

A maritime tragedy is strikingly recorded here as the liner Albert Ballin collided with the tug Merkur, by which it was being towed out of Bremerhaven, Germany. A few moments later the tug (shown slowly sinking) suddenly capsized—hurled eight men to their death.

This is a horse. American humorists have suggested that he be sent across the sea as a mount for the Prince of Wales, but his owner Lester J. Anthony, of Idaho, shown with him, wouldn't think of parting with "Shorty".

With high government officials led by Stalin acting as pall-bearers, here is the impressive scene in Moscow as the urn containing the ashes of Vyacheslav Menzhinsky, head of Russia's Secret Police was borne to its last resting place in the Kremlin Wall. From right to left are Stalin, Voroshilov, Molotov, and Kaganavitch.

It's in the Toledo strike war zone, but the tank isn't bent on destruction. Pushing a brush before it, it is shown cleaning up the city's streets of bricks and missiles thrown at National guardsmen by strikers of the Electric Auto-Lite company.

Japanese schoolboys of the middle schools of Tokyo and vicinity participated in army manoeuvres along the Tama river, with 10,000 youths taking part in the mimic battle finale. Photo shows some of the schoolboys, their guns stacked, sitting under war time conditions.

Prayers of Iowa farmers for rain were answered a hundredfold when the heavens gushed and drenching floods swept the state, parched by months of drought. Here is a remarkable picture of the toll taken by the deluge, the wreck of a train caused by washout of tracks near Council Bluffs, Ia.

NOTICE.

Non-payment of Water Accounts.
Water accounts are posted to the person who signed the Form "G" guaranteeing payment. This person is generally the landlord or his recognized agent.

In many instances inconvenience is caused to tenants by the water supply being disconnected without warning to them, owing to the failure of the guarantor to pay the accounts within the specified period. Tenants are, therefore, advised to make suitable arrangements with their landlords to ensure that all water accounts are paid promptly. Changes of ownership of property should be notified immediately to this Office.

MARRIED FLIRTS

"Marko come yet?" She shuddered. "I told him not to. He simply mustn't. They'd have his picture in all the tabloids. Besides, I didn't want to see him."

"The thing is over then?" She frowned. "Of course. She threatened me—threatened both of us. My nerves won't stand it. I had to get away. New people—new places."

"You know of her existence before then?" It was the lawyer speaking now, not the concerned male relative.

"Oh, I had heard of her—naturally. I didn't suppose it was important. All men."

"Lila, dear," interrupted the other. "I don't like to hear you talk like that. It's sly. It's unbecoming."

She shrugged her shoulders. "Well, anyhow. . . . Marko's been very nice about it. He said I ought to have a change. Perhaps when I come back things will have arranged themselves."

"I doubt it."

"Anyhow, I'm grateful to you, dear, for standing by me so splendidly, with Aunt Marion and all the rest against me."

Lila would employ this manner with males to her dying day. This one—elderly, precise, conventional—responded to it as she had expected him to. He said, "Not at all. You're the victim of circumstances, my child. Nothing more. Aunt Marion simply doesn't understand."

Lila kissed him fondly. He was a bit of a lamb. No one else understood her so well. Aunt Marion and her cousins had been horrid all through her trouble. They had never liked her, had always been jealous of her because she was beautiful. Women!

After he had gone she began to feel a little lonely. Had she been wrong not to bring her maid? But then she had felt she wanted to be alone. There was an engraved list of passengers on hand, and she picked it up, reading it avidly. One name caught her eyes; "The Marquis of Emelin-Dare."

Why, that was the handsome young man she had met at Cannes two or three seasons ago when she had been visiting the Dentons. He was a delightful Englishman. He had been poor as poverty then but he had since come into a lot of money through the death of a relative. Lila sauntered over to the dressing table and touched her hair speculatively. She looked a fright. She would ring up the beauty shop and have a facial. Maybe she would not keep to her cabin all the way, as she had threatened, but dine in the main salon. After all, she had been terribly shut up for the past month. She owed it to herself to take an interest in life. She was young.

The Marquis was young, too. And Marko Broughton was old. Poor Marko! Maybe it had been providential that woman had made such a fuss. He had been very generous with Lila. She would send him a radiogram presently. It would be friendly and cheerful and sisterly in tone. Then she would change and go on deck. Those dreadful reporters would be gone.

FACTORY CONTROL

SHANGHAI PROBLEM UNDER REVIEW IN LONDON

London, July 9. Mr. Li Ping-hang, Chinese delegate to the International Labour Conference at Geneva, who is visiting here, held conversations with Lord Stanhope to-day regarding the enforcement of the Chinese Factory Act at Shanghai.

According to Chinese information the British view is that several details need to be threshed out before the Chinese proposals can be made workable.

The international status of Shanghai precludes any separate action by an individual power, it is felt.

The conversations were most friendly, and Mr. Li returned to Geneva later in the day. It was learned later that Lord Stanhope told Mr. Li that while he viewed the Chinese proposals with much sympathy it was essentially a matter for discussion between the local administrations. Britain would at all times use such influence as she possessed with a view to securing a fully satisfactory outcome of the discussions, he added.—Reuter.

beaten for "drawing water from a public well."

A characteristic touch is added by Mr. Gandhi who discusses the possibility of instituting a series of fasts by his disciples to spread the movement of reform.

Two reasons render Mr. Gandhi's tour important. One is that it has afforded evidence from sources sympathetic to the Indian nationalist cause of the complexity of social conditions still to be found among a not inconsiderable section of the people in India who are about to be given responsible control of their own government. Another is that it reveals how asceticism plays a real part in the Indian political make-up. Mr. Gandhi may be an enigma to the West but he appeals effectively to emotions almost universally potent in the East.

BRITAIN'S LIMIT

Despite the very definite declaration by Mr. Anthony Eden a few days ago that Britain has already gone so far as she can go in the direction of territorial security on the Continent, the visit of M. Barthou to London is being seized upon as indicating the possibility of a new and wider Anglo-French understanding. Mr. Eden made it perfectly clear in his speech that whilst Britain stands by the Locarno Treaties, she has no intention of extending her commitments thereunder to other parts of Europe with which she is not so intimately concerned. The issue has now been taken a step further by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who categorically states that Britain is not entering into any new alliances whatever. The British view on the question of guarantees and security ought to be well known by this time. Britain's traditional aversion to accept precisely defined commitments on the Continent must always remain a guiding motive of policy for a people which is conscious of being a world Power as well as a European Power. The bold departure by the Treaty Locarno from tradition was made the holder because it omitted to bind any part of the British Commonwealth except the European part. And further than this England is unlikely to go. The one inducement for her to accept obligations both wide and precise in Europe, or farther afield, would be the promise of a new and better order. If there were a real prospect that her adherence would make effective the establishment of a collective system of security with reduced armaments, it is possible that popular consent might be won to a general guarantee of execution for an Arms Convention. But, despite careful exploration of the ground, no such indication is at present forthcoming. France, for reasons of her own, does not feel justified in making any reduction of military material or personnel; indeed, in view of possible German rearmament, she wishes to keep her hands entirely free. But the British public would never agree to give guarantees as a counterpart to German rearmament up to a purely defensive level. A general guarantee of security can clearly only be given in return for a general reduction. It goes with disarmament, not rearmament. And, unhappily, at the moment there are no signs that a satisfactory Disarmament Convention is likely to be devised. In the circumstances, it is patent that Britain cannot go further than she already has in the direction of continental commitments.

NOTES OF THE DAY

CHOPPED DOLLARS

There is an obvious weakness in the official argument which seeks to justify disinclination to do anything to remove the chopped dollar nuisance. Despite the fact that complaints of a ramp in defaced coins have been sponsored by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, which ought to know something about the matter, the Treasury insists that there are not enough in circulation to worry about. If the official contention is soundly based, does not that present a stronger reason why an effort should be made to get them out of circulation? If such as do exist were accepted at their face value—by an arrangement between the banks and the Treasury—and retained for re-minting, there would soon be no more grumbling. The fewer there are about, the smaller the comparatively trivial loss, while a constant source of annoyance would disappear. In short, the public interest still demands that something be done. If there are a great number of chopped dollars going from hand to hand and made the medium for a money-changers' ramp, a means should be found of stopping it. If the number is relatively small, no great trouble or loss would be involved in reducing them to nil.

TOUR OF THE TROPICS

The old theory that the white man is apt to deteriorate when he stays in the tropics too long seems to have received official confirmation by act of Congress. President Roosevelt gave his endorsement by signing the Logan bill, which repeals the former requirement that army, navy and marine corps officers must remain at their posts for at least three years when assigned to duty at tropical stations, and leaves the length of their tour of duty to the discretion of the president. Evidence heard by a committee, says a Senate report, showed that "because of the conditions, climatic, social, and otherwise, prevailing in the various foreign service stations," the minds of officers were strained so badly that a considerable number went violently insane. Now it will be possible to feed troops to the officers in smaller doses. And an old theory, beloved of novelists, is confirmed.

ANIMALS DUMB?

The man or woman who professes to be fond of animals and is convinced that his or her pet understands a half dozen familiar commands may be surprised to learn that several "animal dictionaries" have been written. Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet, has announced that he will include a complete glossary of their canine language in his new book, "Lives of Illustrious Dogs," which is to be modelled after Plutarch's "Lives." Other animals whose vocabularies have been recorded are the monkey, the horse, and the cat. An American woman was responsible for classifying 32 terms of the chimpanzee, together with the meaning of each. Other scientists have tabulated 12 "words" of the gibbon's. The horse is said to speak with "six words" and three kinds of neighing." Cats produce 15 sounds, according to the experts, each with its distinct interpretation. There are 12 "words" in the hen's vocabulary and 5 in the rooster's. It seems high time that the phrase, "our dumb friends," went into discard.

A MERITED TRIBUTE

A philosopher has said, "He whom one age stones, another enthrones." While it may be exaggeration to apply that maxim to the case in mind, it warms the hearts of that generation which stole with trepidation into the attic to revel in the exploits of Deadwood Dick to learn that recognition has come at last to the favourite author of their youth. A bronze-plated cobblestone monument is to be erected in America to the memory of Deadwood Dick Clark, scout, frontiersman, and hero of the novels. The Deadwood Dick thrillers were not literature, it is true. There may have been justice in the parental threat to apply the rod to the luckless youngsters caught reading them. But memory of them comes back for a moment like a fresh, clean breeze as one turns in disgust from the mass of drivel and worse that masquerades to-day as literature among our more "advanced" readers. And Deadwood Dick fans of another day silently cheer those who have remembered across the year to pay tribute to the hero who thrilled them as he triumphed over his foes.

THE MAHATMA ON TOUR

By EVERARD COTES

"GO to the Harijans—untouchables—sweep their roads, enter their houses and wash their children."

Such is the terse call to the stark realities of social service which that remarkable leader of Indian Nationalism, Mr. Mohandas K. Gandhi, has been preaching from village to village in a tour from one end of the subcontinent of India to the other.

The words quoted are from a speech made to Indian university students at Nagpur, Central Provinces, by this former barrister of the Inner Temple, who is known among his own people as "the Mahatma," or great-souled one. Mr. Gandhi's tour is to arouse 180,000,000 Hindus of the higher castes to the need for better treatment for 60,000,000 of their less fortunate fellows belonging to what are known as the "depressed classes" or "untouchables."

The depressed classes—officially estimated at 20 per cent of the total population of British India—have for centuries been denied by their neighbours the elemental rights of human existence. They live under a perpetual system of ostracism. They are denied access to public wells and temples. Their lot in one part of India is such that an "untouchable" proceeding along a public road, finds himself compelled by his fellows to shout in order to warn other wayfarers of the risk of caste pollution that is near.

Mr. Gandhi has long been a powerful advocate of Indian social reform. His present mission has touched Hindu imagination. Enthusiastic crowds have gathered to hear him wherever he has halted. He is being acclaimed chiefly as a great nationalist leader and Hindu ascetic, but partly also because educated Indians feel he is seeking to remedy what the best of them regard as a reproach to their civilization.

Europeans in India agree that good is being done, even though they find also that politics as well as philanthropy comes in.

Mr. Gandhi, it is pointed out, has not ceased to be connected with passive resistance to the existing Indian system of law and order.

It is recalled that the personal freedom that has made Mr. Gandhi's present tour possible is due to his having been unconditionally released last September from prison where he was serving a one year's sentence for disobeying the law in the furtherance of an anti-Government movement in the Bombay presidency. His release was in consequence of fears for his health felt by the Government owing to a fast which he threatened to continue to a fatal climax.

He is still honouring a declaration he made on Sept. 14 last when he announced that he would not himself again participate in aggressive civil resistance until after Aug. 3, 1934, when the unserved portion of his sentence of imprisonment expires.

He remains the chief—if for the moment the otherwise employed leader of the Indian National Congress, a body still actively supporting civil resistance. The dual nature of his position is disclosed in a statement issued on Nov. 24, 1933, to his political followers.

In this statement he bids those engaged in civil resistance to the Government to keep their activities in this respect apart from those of the reform movement for the untouchables.

"While congressmen who are also civil realists on active service," he writes, "may do, as they are bound to do, such service to the cause as they can, they may not belong to the Servants of the Untouchables Society or to any of its branches."

Objection felt in British circles in India to the continuation of the situation thus disclosed leaves the merits of the untouchable movement unaffected. These merits have been well served by a happy idea of Mr. Gandhi in naming his organ "Harijan," which means "children of the supreme essence."

Facts he has collected in this organ throw lurid light upon conditions still existing among the humble folk he is trying to help.

The extremity of the poverty of the untouchables is brought out in a pathetic note in the Harijan of Nov. 24. This note records the award to one Ghanashyam Prasad Chamar of Damoh of "a scholarship worth three rupees ($1) a month" to enable this student "to continue his studies in the high school." One dollar a month apparently means ability to Ghanashyam to raise himself to the level of other men.

Other good deeds are put on record. "Meetings," we are told, "were held at Damoh and Harsud to persuade chamars (low caste leather workers) to give up carrying out dead bodies." Walls were thrown open for Harijans at the great fair in Khandawa district. "The society received 'two maunds (160 pounds) of soap from the Birla soap factory for distribution among the students.' This, Mr. Gandhi's organ adds, "has contributed to a great improvement in the personal cleanliness of the students."

Other entries mention the throwing open of certain temples to members of the depressed classes. Another note says "false rumours among the barbers, washmen and cobblers say that the members of these (low caste) communities would be taken for sacrifice at some supposed bridge." The society, the Harijan adds, "had instructed its teachers and students of different busters (hamlets) to inform the inhabitants by beat of drum of the baselessness of such rumours."

At Eljhom, North Malabar, in November, untouchables showed "assertiveness as a result of the uplift work done among them." The Harijan goes on to describe how the untouchables actually began "freely using the public footpath running through the village." It adds that the untouchables were thereupon attacked by their neighbours and "hunted from house to house like wild animals." A list of resultant casualties follow including those of two men and two women in hospital with head wounds.

On Nov. 3, Mr. Gandhi's organ notices a case then pending before the courts in Kheda, Gujarat, where untouchables had been

The Very Idea!

YOUR SON'S CAREER
By George

DEAR Mothers and Fathers,—Is your progeny a little snivelling wretch with no teeth, a few wisps of scraggy hair, and a leaning towards rickets?

Well, now is the time to look into the future and plan out for him a noble career.

Don't wait until he goes to school.

It may be too late.

By then he will have mixed with other children, absorbed their ideas on Socialism, picked out his favourite film star, and generally settled his ideas on life.

Follow our method and catch 'em young—if you want son to follow in daddy's footsteps, make him respect his father. It has been done in the past.

If you want him to become a great man and he shows a propensity for playing marbles, remember that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. The Duke of Wellington said that to prove he had a good education.

Mussolini began in a small way with tin soldiers and finished up with real soldiers wearing shirts.

Start your son off with tin soldiers and he may finish, wearing other people's shirts. If he is not a bookie he may be a butler in which case he will be more concerned with getting the sack than losing his shirt.

Talking of races, it's not every horse you can put your shirt on—unless you are of the Lord Derby build (and then the horse probably wouldn't stand it).

But getting back to your son, you must watch early for the little signs that point out success in his particular line.

If he is bowlegged he will probably make a jockey but not a professional goalkeeper.

If his eyes are crossed he is probably a potential detective already in disguise; but he is certainly not a dentist, a traffic cop, or a snooker player.

If his fingers are clumsy he will probably do well for himself on the cash register of some thriving business, but will never win a thread-the-needle race or gain distinction as a pick-pocket.

Should he prove to be a dunce at school, the odds are that he will prove a brilliant politician, and if he can be induced to take to a curved pipe early enough he may rise to occupy the Prime Minister's chair or a detective's dressing gown.

We repeat, watch your son. He may be in the pantry now!

NATURE STUDIES

(Extracts From Little Ada's Exercise Book).

The elephant is a large animal kept for the amusement of good children and is kind, industrious, and gentle.

It earns its living at home by eating cakes and sweets but at other places it carries logs and blows a trumpet.

Some silly children have a rhyme that "the elephant is a dainty bird and hops from tree to tree." This is untrue and teacher says we should have more sense than to believe it.

The elephant carries a little flit spray in its trunk for use in the jungle where there are many flies and mosquitoes, and as an additional protection against these insects it is mounted with two big tusks.

Although the elephant is a very gentle natured beast, it is apt to get mad when big game hunters shoot at it. The great thing about shooting elephants is to hit them in a vital place straight away, as a bullet in the behind only makes them angry and is not very good for the hide.

Elephants have taken up dancing, acrobatics, and juggling with some success and apart from the indigestion caused by having to consume a large number of cakes and sweets daily, they manage to have a fairly good time.

The elephant can easily be distinguished from the newt, the latter confining its activities to the water and being invariably much smaller than the elephant.

Owing to the value of its tusks, the elephant has always been a bone of contention.

CORPORAL DIES IN HOSPITAL

MILITARY HONOURS AT FUNERAL

The death occurred at the Military Hospital yesterday of Lance Corporal Herbert North the 2nd Bn. Worcestershire Regiment. The deceased was brought ashore here about five weeks ago when bound for home, seriously ill, and was admitted to hospital. Despite all that could be done for him, he gradually grew worse and passed away yesterday. The funeral will take place at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, yesterday evening, the Rev. H. C. Davies, M.C., M.A., Chaplain to the Forces, officiating. The escort of 50 rank and file, the firing party and the Band drums, the latter draped in black, of the South Wales Borderers were under the command of Lt. T. H. S. Gellatly.

Wreaths were sent by His Excellency the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., Lt.-Col. J. H. Kelly, Officer Commanding the 2nd Battalion the Worcestershire Regiment and All Ranks of the South Wales Borderers and the Corporals of the South Wales Borderers.

BISHOP HALL IN SHAMEEN

DEDICATION OF A TABLET

Canton, July 9. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Hall took the Sunday services in Christ Church, Shameen, yesterday. After the Holy Communion Service, he dedicated a tablet to Rev. C. I. Blanchett who had been Vicar of the Church for many years and who died last year. The tablet was erected by some of his many friends.

Bishop Hall gave a most interesting sermon at the 10.30 morning service on the frequent taking of the Lord's name in vain. The Church was better attended than usual, and those present hope that the Bishop will repeat his visit in the near future, when it is to be hoped that there will be an even better attendance.

Apart from the religious aspect, the Bishop is such a fine speaker and intellectual man that it is really worth while going to hear him. It is, moreover, refreshing to have something else to think of than bridge, dinner parties and the pictures.—Our Own Correspondent.

MISSIONARY DIES IN CANTON

PASSING OF MR. P. W. ROBERTSON

Canton, July 9. The death occurred on Friday of Mr. Peter Walter Robertson, one of the oldest missionaries in South China. He had been ill for several months following a fall he had some considerable time ago. The funeral took place at the Macao Fort cemetery.

Mr. Robertson will be very much missed by the many friends he had in Canton. Both Canadians, he and his wife, who were a most devoted couple, came out to China unattached to any special mission, after the death of their only son. It had been the son's wish to come out to China to engage in missionary work, and the old people therefore took it upon themselves to come out in his stead, in his memory. Mr. Robertson was 75 years of age. Much sympathy is felt for the widow in her bereavement.—Our Own Correspondent.

THE CRAIGENGOWER CRICKET CLUB ARE HOLDING ANOTHER WHIST DRIVE AT THE CLUB ON SATURDAY EVENING NEXT, AND MEMBERS WITH THEIR FRIENDS ARE HEARTILY INVITED.

The following weddings are announced to take place shortly.—Mr. Fung Shou-tang, engineer, of 70, See Shu Street, Canton, and Miss Rose Tse of 13, King Kwong Street, Hong Kong. Mr. Tong Hin-wa of 201, Hennessy Road, and Miss Chan Yuk-jun of 4, Tin Lok Lane.

The Empress of Russia (from Manila) is due here at 7.30 a.m. tomorrow and will berth at Kowloon Wharf.

POWERFUL BATTING SIDES INDICATES A DRAWN MATCH

stronger in this department of the game. On both sides there is batting down to number nine at least. But the bowling is a more doubtful quality, and it will very largely depend on who comes off.

The one thing that strikes me is that Oxford have not got a fast bowler as far as I can see. R. G. Tindall is only medium as far as I know. He did not get a wicket at Lord's last year but during the season took twenty-six wickets for 35.10 apiece. Barlow is a slow medium stock bowler. Singleton, a left hand turner who has been described as "something more than an understudy to Barlow," gets in as a Freshers and has 'bowled on' during the season. J. H. Dyson is a slow left-hander, and Mitchell James has been known to take wickets. But, unless there is a sticky wicket, I cannot think it is a strong bowling side.

CAMBRIDGE.

On the whole the Cambridge bowling seems a trifle more convincing. Jehangir Khan, who has been out of the side with strain for a month, seems to have got back to form again—he took five wickets against Sussex, while, after knocking at the door of the side for three years, A. G. Pelham of Eton—a fastish medium bowler—has done pretty well. Grimshaw probably a bit faster than he is, while F. King of Dulwich and Christi (F. not J.S.M.—there ain't no such person!) has done very well at times.

Human will have to rely on these four as his mainstay at attack though he has been known to get wickets himself with his slow leg-breakers; while Davies is now, I suppose, known as "the man who bowled Bradman." But both of these trundlers are apt to be very expensive.

BAD LUCK.

That both sides are strong, there is no doubt. For Cambridge, in an ordinary year, Dinwiddie (of Kent Second eleven) J. H. Cameron (Taunton and St. Catherine's), D. Rought-Rought (Private) and T. R. Emanuel, the fast bowler, and G. G. Garnett, the fast batsman, and A. S. Hotchkin (Eton and Trinity) and A. F. Skinner (Leys and Trinity) might well have got their Blues. While at Oxford, R. G. Tindall does his place, and A. A. Wrexford-Brown (Charterhouse and Wrexford) T. M. Watson (Monkton Combe and Balliol) and especially K. L. T. Jackson (Rugby and Trinity) have been unlucky. Neither of the 1932 old Blues, E. M. Evans or A. R. Legard have had a trial—even in the Seniors! I don't know if the first named is up, but Legard was said to be bowling very well in the nets, and in view of Oxford's lack of fast bowling I am surprised he has not been tried.

THE STUMPERS.

A. G. Powell keeps for Cambridge. A third year man, he has been overshadowed by J. T. H. Comber before, but he is a good keeper and a very useful bat. N. S. Knight, of Uppingham and Wadhwa, in the Oxford stumper. A second year man he had no chance last season against P. C. Cluff who has now gone down. His rival this year was A. L. Warr (Bromsgrove and B. N. C.). He was much fancied early on, and one is tempted to wonder whether the fact that Chalk, of B.N.C., the captain, is ready had six B.N.C. men in the side may have kicked the scale against him! By the way, this does not necessarily imply favouritism. It is natural that good Freshers should (ceteris paribus, which means scholarship excepted) go up to the College with the big cricket reputation. Until a year or so ago Pemmer, Cambridge, occupied a similar position.

P.S.—Since writing the above notes I have come to the conclusion that the Minor Counties Match, being played over three days should count as first class. If so, another draw must be added to the given figures, and two centuries, J. W. Seamer (194) and N. S. Mitchell James (140). But the only Blue who turned out was D. F. Walker.

TENNIS LEAGUE

Only One Match In "C" Division Played

In spite of the difficult conditions obtaining, owing to the wet turf, which made the game more or less a fiasco, the "C" Division fixture in the Lawn Tennis League between the Craigenower Cricket Club and the Central British Association was played yesterday, resulting in a victory for Craigenower by 6½ sets to 2½.

The other six matches in the same Division scheduled for yesterday were not played, the grounds being unfit for play.

A. B. Hanson and H. J. Howard paired well for Craigenower to win two sets and draw the third, while Angus and Ferguson were outstanding for the losers, obtaining all the points. Scores:

F. R. Zimmerman and D. Leonard (Craigenower) lost to Angus and Ferguson 2-6; beat Whitely and Blyth 6-3; beat Halford and Gurevitch 6-1.

W. J. Howard and A. Kitchell (Craigenower) lost to Angus and Ferguson 1-6; beat Whitely and Blyth 6-3; beat Halford and Gurevitch 6-1.

A. B. Hanson and H. J. Howard (Craigenower) drew with Angus and Ferguson 6-6; beat Whitely and Blyth 6-4; beat Halford and Gurevitch 6-2.

LAWN BOWLS

Several Matches On Heavy Greens

Several matches in the Lawn Bowls Singles championship were decided yesterday on greens which were rather on the heavy side.

A very close match was seen on the Civil Service green, when F. V. V. Ribeiro beat his clubmate B. Basto by 21 shots to 19. Ribeiro won on the 23rd end when he scored a three to give him the match. Basto was leading on the 22nd end by 19 shots to 15. The scores were level on the 21 end, when each player had 18 shots. Both players scored a four.

A. O. Brown completely outstripped P. E. Knight on the Craigengower green, winning by 22 shots to seven. The match terminated on the 60th end. Brown scored two threes in his total.

A fine game was played on the Club de Recreo green where E. G. Post, of the Police, defeated S. Randle, of the Civil Service C. C. by 21 shots to 18. The play was always of a high standard. Post preferring a long head and Randle a short one. The winner had a slight lead at the start, but Randle caught him up at 16-16 and went ahead at 17-16. Post was not to be denied, however, and playing wonderfully well he emerged winner at 21-18 after 24 ends.

V. Federich had an easy passage when he met J. Fraser at Kowloon Docks, winning by 21-8. He was not extended at all and won after 16 ends.

The Kowloon Bowling Green Club green where the tie between E. W. Simmons and A. S. Gomes was to have been played was not in a fit condition and the match was postponed.

ROYAL FUNERAL

BURIAL OF PRINCE HENRY TO-MORROW

The funeral of the late His Royal Highness Henry, Prince of the Netherlands, Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Consort of Her Majesty Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands, who died at the Hague on July 3, will take place at Delft to-morrow.

The Court has gone into half mourning for one month. The offices of the local Consulate General will be closed on the day of the funeral.

The half masting of the Dutch flag will be discontinued after the date of the funeral. Vessels of the J. C. J. L. line in port yesterday flew their flags at half-mast.

PRINCE'S ILLNESS.

DUCHESS OF YORK TO STAY IN LONDON

London, July 9. The Duke of York's office here today issued a statement to the effect that His Royal Highness was still confined to bed with a poisoned finger and that the Duchess of York had cancelled her visit to Scotland.

Their Majesties the King and Queen, however, left for Edinburgh this morning aboard a special train.—United Press.

THE OUTLOOK IN AMERICA

FEAR OF HIGHER LIVING COSTS

Washington, July 9.

It is expected that the N.R.A. Administration will be remodelled.

The Federal Service Relief Corporation will buy during July, 3,000,000 yards of cotton ticking, as part of their intended ultimate purchase of a total of 20,000,000 yards. They will also buy 250,000 bales of cotton.

Substantial advances in the prices of commodities are expected, but there is a fear that this will cause a too rapid rise in living costs, creating serious social unrest.

New silver certificates will be designated as legal tender as well as other paper money. It will be possible to issue certificates against bullion since the certificates will not designate that a silver dollar has been deposited in the Treasury for the redemption of the certificate but that the holder will be entitled to a dollar in silver for the certificate held.

A new set-up of the Federal Reserve system under Treasury control is expected to be recommended by the Treasury at the next session of Congress.—Swan, Culbertson and Frits.

SELECTORS' PLANS.

"I heard I was not to be played in the first Test in any case. If England could win without me, then I would not be played at all, and that would placate the people who feared cricket was going to burst the Empire."

"If I intended to play, I should certainly bow leg theory. If the captain interfered with the disposition of my field I would refuse to bowl any more and walk from the wicket. It is, perhaps, just as well that it won't happen."

"If I was right in Australia I must be right now. The M.C.C. are shilly-shallying, trying to be for and against leg theory at the same time."

"Jardine has been treated disgracefully, because of the misguided desire of politicians not to offend the Australians who are uneducated, not because they were hurt, but because they could not make runs against leg theory."

MAID AND SECRETARY

AUSTRALIAN "HELLO" GIRLS' WORK

More than 9,000 calls have been registered in Sydney alone under the "Wake Me Early" and "Appointments Reminder" services instigated by the Australian Postal Department last year.

These are two of many innovations made to stimulate business. Another is the Key Town plan. To increase the use of long distance telephones by business firms and their travellers, a rebate is allowed according to the time used in calls, says Austral News.

The fixed time calls on trunk lines enable calls to be booked in advance for a specified time.

The "Demand System" is designed to connect trunk line calls, whenever traffic permits, at time of lodgment, while the calling subscriber remains at the telephone.

The trunk line person-to-person call costs 3d for stations not more than 100 miles away, and 6d over that distance. It ensures that the person called will be advised of the time that the conversation shall commence.

Calls to non-subscribers may be made in the same manner as trunk line calls by nominating the person and the address. Arrangements are made at the district office to have the recipient of the call brought to the nearest public telephone.

The Department has also detailed an officer to instruct students at business colleges on the operation of private exchange switchboards.

In a collision with a motor-car in Chatham Road yesterday, a young Chinese, Liu Siu, riding a bicycle, was thrown off his seat and seriously injured in the face and about the body. He was taken to the Kowloon Hospital.

YESTERDAY'S TEST MATCH PLAY DESCRIBED

AUSTRALIAN "TAIL" AGAIN

Sudden Collapse Of The Visitors

FOUR WICKETS FALL FOR HUNDRED ODD RUNS

Manchester, July 9. The sky was cloudless when the Third Test match was resumed at Old Trafford this morning with a cooling breeze blowing. The wicket appears to be perfect apart from a spot outside the leg stump where W. J. O'Reilly, the Australian bowler, finished his run whilst bowling against England.

W. A. Brown and S. J. McCabe were loudly applauded when they returned to the wicket to resume Australia's innings of 180 for one wicket. Brown had made 50 and McCabe 55 on Saturday, the first wicket partnership having yielded 102 runs.

Both batsmen settled down to patient cricket and gradually took the score to 230 when Brown was caught by Walters rather easily at square. The leg off Clark, the fast bowler, the Australian had made 72, the partnership yielding 186 runs. Brown had played patient cricket for 245 minutes.

W. M. Woodfull was the next batsman in and he was badly misjudged by Hendren before opening his score. After the total had been taken to 245 he lost McCabe who had been playing magnificent cricket and had reached 157 before being caught in the slip by Hammond off Verity. He gave an exhibition of all round cricket and collected 18 fours during the 215 minutes he was at the wicket.

Darling joined the Australian captain and they were still together when lunch was taken. Woodfull had scored 17 and Darling 16, the total being 283 for three.

The pair were still batting steadily and at three o'clock they had taken the score to 316 without being separated.

There were 30,000 spectators during the afternoon when Woodfull, the Lancashire bowler, tied up the batsmen who were playing steadily to avoid the follow-on. There was a spell when nine consecutive maidens were sent down to Woodfull and Darling.

Eventually England's bowlers met with success when Hendren played on to Verity after he had made 37, the total then being 320 runs. Darling had been batting for 110 minutes and helped Woodfull to put on 78 for the fourth wicket.

Bradman was pale and drawn as he walked listlessly to the wicket to take Darling's place. He held up his end and had scored 25 runs when the players adjourned for tea. Woodfull had made 57 and the score was 373 for four wickets. Bradman was caught by Ames on a snick off Hammond when he had added a useful 30 runs.

Woodfull jumped for joy a few minutes later when Hammond missed a return catch. But his pleasure was short-lived for he was out when attempting a foolish single. He had a fine innings, with seven fours, playing a gallant 230 minutes. 400-73-6.

Oldfield went next, taken by Wyatt who made a wonderful catch, leaping sideways and taking the ball inches from the ground at silly mid-off. Verity was bowling. 411-7-13.

Chipperfield, brought from the sick room to bat, could hardly raise his bat from the crease. He was cheered sympathetically and he was not out, with seven runs to his score at the end of play. Grimmett was with him for a time but Verity took his middle stump and dismissed him for a duck. 419-8-0.

O'Reilly came in and joined Chipperfield and had scored one run before the close.

Burst Tyres Mar Sporting Cycle Ride

CAPTAIN OF HONGKONG CYCLING CLUB HAS NASTY UPSET

Heavy rain delayed the start of the Hongkong Cycling Club's week-end spin, a commencement eventually being made at 11.30 a.m. from the Vehicular Ferry. A rather poor attendance was augmented by the participation in the run of a small party of R.A.S.C. cyclists. A light rain continued for the early half of the ride, but this dispersed shortly after the bathing venue at Ting-kok had been reached. Considerable trouble was experienced throughout the ride in the form of punctures, due mainly to the ill condition of the roads. The first deflation took place almost at the commencement of the run, whilst the captain's puncture at five miles caused a nasty spill as he was cornering at speed when he was cornering at a party turned, however, no serious injury resulted, and the Club reached Tai-po via Shatin at 1.15 p.m. without further mishap.

Here the bridge at the northern end of the village was crossed and the party turned right along the coast. The end of this motor road was soon reached, but the riders continued along the coastal path through the villages of Nam-Hang, Ha-Hang and Shun-Wan with its story beaches, eventually halting at the small sandy beach near Ting-kok. Here refreshments and a bath were enjoyed, though the latter was partially spoiled by a large shoal of jellyfish which decided to utilize the cyclists' particular beach.

MORE PUNCTURES.
The return to Tai-po was made by the same track, the local pineapple plantations being inspected (but not ridden) en route. Several small Chinese temples were observed in this district and a run will be taken in a few weeks' time with the object of looking over some of these. A short halt was made at Tai-po Market and a small stock of fruit was "taken aboard" before leaving at 4.45 p.m. for home. The sun was then beaming its first smile of the day on the hardy wheelers, but Dame Fortune was far from being so good-natured; two more punctures were collected near Shatin, though these had their silver lining in the fact that assistance was rendered by a couple of passing Chinese cyclists, thus proving that the comradeship of the road so common to cyclists especially, is even evident in the Far East.

Shamshuipo was finally reached at 6.45 p.m. after a speedy descent from the reservoir, a tired but immensely pleased party dispersing from that point. The attendance of the R.A.S.C. riders was greatly appreciated, and their cycling efforts were truly astonishing when it is considered that they were mounted only on hired machines. The members of the Club will be very pleased to welcome them again on any future run.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Long Lost Father." RKO-Radio's

comedy-drama, from G. B. Stern's novels, stars John Barrymore, at the King's Theatre, on Thursday, as a father who is the toast of London's night life, and pursued by countless women, but despised by his own daughter.

In "Long Lost Father" Barrymore is Carl Bellairs, manager of a fashionable cabaret to which Lindsey Lane, his daughter, comes to dance. Carl deserted Lindsey when she was a babe in arms, and throughout her life, the daughter has fostered sheer hate for her renegade parent.

Now Carl essays to govern Lindsey as a father does his child. She studiously resists him. The debonair and suave Carl, seeking the love of a daughter in a paternal way, encounters greater difficulty than in his amours with strange women.

Ernest B. Schoedsack directed "Long Lost Father" from an adaptation by Dwight Taylor. Helen Chandler and Donald Cook play featured roles in Barrymore's support, with Alan Mowbray, E. E. Clive, Reginald Sharland, Natalie Moorhead and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

"I Loved a Woman"

Maxwell Arnow, casting director for First National, insists that any famous character of history can be portrayed more than adequately by some of the many character actors in Hollywood.

That is why he sent for E. J. Ratcliffe when he found that Theodore Roosevelt, winner of the "big stick" was to be prominent in "I Loved a Woman," the latest Edward G. Robinson starring vehicle which opens on Thursday at the Alhambra.

The value of Ratcliffe's extraordinary resemblance to Teddy Roosevelt was only realized long after both statesman and actor had become famous in their respective fields.

For fifty years he has been prominently identified with both the English and American theatre.

"I Loved a Woman" is a sensational drama centring about a millionaire meat-packer who seeks to gain world food control to please a woman whom he secretly loves.

Roosevelt comes into the story through his prosecution of this packer for selling "embalmed" meat to Spanish War veterans.

Edward G. Robinson has the role of the unusual hero with Kay Francis, as his innamorata. Others in the cast are Genevieve Tobin, Robinson's wife and the other woman in the love triangle, J. Farrell MacDonald, Henry Kolker, Robert Barrat, George Blackwood, Murray Kinnell and Henry O'Neill.

"Cohens and Kellys in Troubles"

The famous Seven Years War is over! George Sidney and Charlie Murray, co-starring in "The Cohens and Kellys in Troubles," their seventh picture together, refuse to go on with their racial hostilities, and the result is that when the picture comes to the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, the public will find them united against a belligerent world.

In the last six pictures of the "Cohens and Kellys" series, Sidney Murray have played shrewdly kicked, bitten and smacked each other through Atlantic City, Scotland, Paris and Hollywood, not to mention Africa and a few other places.

They quarrel over their difference in race, over their business, their children, their wives, marriage and divorce.

"3 On A Honeymoon"

Featuring Sally Ellers and ZaSu Pitts, "3 On A Honeymoon," Fox film's latest comedy romance, opens at the King's Theatre to-day.

The picture, directed by James Tinling, is said to be a delectable, gay and kiddy romance of a spoiled and wilful girl who has been leading a hectic existence.

Charlie Starrett, the young man who gave so excellent a performance in "Mr. Skitch," has the masculine lead opposite Sally Ellers.

The comic situations, of which there are said to be many, are portrayed by that hilarious comedienne, ZaSu Pitts.

The other members of the cast are Homratta Crossman, Irene Hervey, John Mack Brown, Russell Simpson and Cornelius Keefe.

"Whistling in the Dark"

With Ernest Truex, internationally famous comedian, heading a cast of film favourites in a film version of one of his greatest Broadway successes, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Whistling in the Dark" is showing from Thursday at the Queen's Theatre.

DOOMED FLIGHT

BOMBS PLANTED IN GERMAN PLANES

Geneva, July 9.

Sabotage is believed to have caused the crash of two German aeroplanes over Lake Constance to-day. The accidents took seven lives.

According to stories told by travellers from Germany both planes came from Lowental Aerodrome, near the great flying centre of Friedrichshafen. The first machine crashed near Reutenen owing to a wing suddenly crumbling in level flight following the explosion of what is believed to have been an infernal machine.

Three occupants of this "machine" were killed in the inevitable crash-up.

An hour later a second plane from the same aerodrome crashed while flying over the scene of the accident and the pilot and three passengers were instantly killed.

All persons responsible for the machines before they left the aerodrome have been arrested, as it is felt that it would be impossible for a bomb to be concealed anywhere on the wings without the inspecting mechanics perceiving it.

Machine guns, too, have been posted at the aerodrome where a strong guard of troops has been rushed in anticipation of further troubles.—Reuter.

are Una Merkel, one of the screen's most popular comedienne; Edward Arnold, who was in the original stage cast with Truex; John Miljan, G. Henry Gordon, Johnny Hines, Joseph Cowden, Na Fendleton, Gen. Holtz and Marcelle Corday.

"Whistling in the Dark" is the story of a mystery novel author forced to devise a "perfect crime" for a band of crooks who plan to kill a man who is far away on a speeding train.

In "Whistling in the Dark," Ernest Truex is making his first appearance in talking pictures, although he starred in films in several silent productions. At the stage he starred in "The Fall Guy," both in New York and London, and is the only American of the modern stage to win a permanent place in the London theatre, where he kept England laughing for four continuous years.

"Laughing Boy"

Ramon Novarro portrays a starring role with Lupe Velez as the feminine lead in "Laughing Boy," stirring Indian drama filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios from the famous Pulitzer Prize story, by Oliver La Forge.

The picture is showing to-day and to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. The story from which the new picture was adapted was one of America's "best-sellers" of a few years ago, and is probably the most widely read Indian story ever printed.

It concerns the life of a young Navajo Indian, who comes from the mountain regions of his reservation home to earn of life and love.

Col. W. S. Van Dyke, famous globe trotting director, noted for such successes as "White Shadows in the South Seas," "Trader Horn," "Eskimo" and recently the fight drama "Prize-fighter and the Lady," handled direction of the film.

"Son of a Sailor"

"Son of a Sailor," the newest First National screen comedy for Joe E. Brown, which is showing at the Alhambra Theatre, is said to be the most laugh-provoking vehicle ever assigned to this star.

It is a comedy of navy life. Al Cohn and Paul Gerrard Smith supplied the story, which carries its hero from his sailor's hammock aboard the aircraft carrier of the Pacific fleet, to misadventures in a wealthy home ashore—and back again to the decks of the warship.

"Handsome" the bonafide, the hopeful, the wilful, is said to represent one of Joe E. Brown's major film achievements. The star's supporting cast for "Son of a Sailor" is one of the finest he has ever had.

In important roles, are such screen notables as Johnny Mack Brown, Thelma Houston, Jean Muir, the new First National "discovery" who has been the cause of great enthusiasm and high expectations in Hollywood; Frank McHugh, Sholla Terry, Kenneth Thomson, George Blackwood and Myrna Kennedy.

YOUR LIFE DEPENDS UPON A PUMP

The Minute It Stops Pumping You Die.

This little pump that is so vital to your life is only about 1/25 the size of an ordinary pump used to pump water from a well, yet it can pump blood faster than a strong, bulky man can pump water from a well. And blood is seven times as sticky as water, therefore over so much harder to pump.

This little pump—the most wonderful pump in the world—is your heart. It is your most vital organ; and the hardest worker.

This marvellous piece of human power-machinery keeps your blood stream in motion. It pumps the red blood corpuscles, loaded with life-giving oxygen, from the lungs to your millions of body cells. After unloading this oxygen, the red blood corpuscles load up with poisonous carbon dioxide gas forever being generated in the system, and the heart pumps this to the lungs to be breathed out of the system. These red blood corpuscles also carry nutriment from the food digested in the intestines, and the heart pumps this nutriment to your millions of body cells.

If your heart were to stop beating for a few seconds you would die for lack of oxygen.

A Curious Thing About Your R.B.C.s

Your red blood corpuscles (R.B.C.s) cannot carry their full loads of life-giving oxygen throughout your body or fully remove the carbon dioxide gas unless they are rich in a wonderful substance called haemoglobin, which has the power to absorb the oxygen and the carbon dioxide gas.

When your haemoglobin is low, your heart has a thin, weak blood stream to pump instead of a rich, red one. You cannot get the full benefit out of this marvellous pump until you enrich your blood with haemoglobin.

What A Clinic of 40 People Showed

If your haemoglobin is only a little below normal you will not recognize anything much wrong except perhaps that you tire more easily and don't feel right up to the mark. If your haemoglobin is low enough to need correcting, you will have symptoms such as—poor appetite, indigestion, constipation, pale or muddy complexion, lack of strength and vigour, breathlessness, chronic tired-out feeling, nervousness.

If you have these symptoms you can obtain the same preparation that was given to a clinic of 40 students and which increased the haemoglobin in 38 out of 40 cases—a 95 per cent. record. In some cases this preparation increased the haemoglobin as much as 15, 10, 17, 20 and 22 per cent. in the short test period of 4 to 6 weeks. Ten per cent. would have been considered a good increase.

The student members of the clinic reported a great improvement in energy, pep, strength a new sense of well being—after their haemoglobin had been increased.

One Month's Treatment Often Sufficient

In many cases, one month's treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is all that is necessary to restore the haemoglobin to normal. If not, the improvement will be so marked, you will feel so much better, stronger, more vigorous—more like working, more like doing things and having a good time—that you will need no urging to continue the treatment until completely restored to normal.

Be Fair To Your Heart

Remember, Nature gave you the most wonderful pump in the world for the purpose of pumping blood rich in haemoglobin to your lungs, brain, stomach, liver, intestines—every organ and cell of your body.

You are not treating your heart fairly if you keep on letting it pump thin, weak blood throughout your body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are obtainable from chemists everywhere.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.A great many people abuse the original forcing two of a suit bid.
You know when you make a bid of two of a suit, you are placing an obligation not only on your partner, but on yourself, to keep the bidding open until game is reached.Therefore, the only time a good player will make a two-bid is when he can absolutely make game, even though his partner's hand is trick-less.However, there is another bid which may be used with a big hand, and that is the original bid of two no trump. You should make this bid only when you have a high card in every suit and are in position to run off eight tricks yourself. In addition, I like to have a five-card suit headed by the ace, king, queen.If partner has an absolutely trickless hand—that is, nine spot high—he is privileged to pass your two no trump bid, and with a little strength, he can show it. Then you do not get into trouble on these big hands.The interesting part of to-day's hand, played by Herbert Fleischer and his partner, of Erie, Pa., is that the declarer is forced into a squeeze.The PlayThe Jack of diamonds was opened by West, and Fleischer in the South won the trick with the ace.

Of course, the first thing the declarer wished to do was to find if the heart suit would break. He knew that he must conserve his entries in his hand; therefore, he led the ace of hearts, and then a small heart, winning in dummy with the king. East's drop of the jack warned him that the heart suit would not break.A small spade was won with the ace and Fleischer decided to see if there was any chance of dropping the singleton king of clubs. He led the ace of clubs, and this plan failed.Now he decided to cash his tricks, so he led the king of spades.
West let go a diamond. Another spade was played and another diamond discarded by West. The trick was won with the jack, and the queen of spades was played, declarer discarding a diamond.West found himself squeezed.
He could not let go the king of clubs nor a heart, so all he could do was to drop a diamond.Of course, Fleischer now had to lead to his own hand and heBANKS.*THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA & CHINA.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS.

ONLY ONE PERSON KILLED
LAST MONTH

Only one fatal traffic accident occurred on the Island last month, a Chinese woman being knocked down and killed by a motor bus in Queen's Road Central on June 24.

A total of 98 accidents were reported to the Police authorities during the month, and fifty persons were injured as a result of these traffic mishaps.

The largest number of accidents were caused by private motor cars, which were involved in 44 accidents and injured 23 persons. Motor lorries were involved in 23 accidents, five persons being injured, and 15 accidents were attributed to public motor cars, which caused injuries to six persons.

Injuries were sustained in all four cases in which motor cycles were involved. Two persons were injured in five motor bus accidents and there were two accidents involving hand trucks.

Tram-cars were involved in five accidents during the month, four persons being injured.

MAHATMA GANDHI NEAR A BREAK-DOWN

Lahore, July 9.
The health of Mahatma Gandhi, champion of the lower classes of India in their long struggle for recognition as a political force, is perilously near the breaking-point.

His health has been impaired latterly by his strenuous work on behalf of the depressed classes and according to his chief lieutenant his condition is serious. It may necessitate a curtailment of the programme in connection with Gandhi's forthcoming visit here.

He might well collapse under the strain of the many ceremonies planned. It is felt.

Gandhi's health was known to be seriously affected by his last two hunger strikes. It was thought

PAN-PACIFIC CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN TOKYO

The Maha Bodhi Society delegates to the Pan-Pacific Buddhist Conference, which is to be held at Tokyo from July 17 to 25, arrived at Hongkong by the liner Hakone Maru on Friday.

They are a party of six, including three ladies, and intend to take part in the various discussions that will come up before the Conference, and also sponsor two important resolutions: (1) a resolution demanding the restoration of Buddhagaya Temple, the most sacred Shrine in the world, (it is situated about 7 miles to the north of Gaya, India, and is now in the hands of a Hindu Salva Mahant); (2) the resolution supporting the proposed International Buddhist University at Sarnath, Benares, in memory of the late Sri Devanilla Dharma-pala, the founder of the Maha Bodhi Society, the aim of the University being to foster the study of Buddhism in its manifold aspects and to unite the Buddhists of the world.

After the Conference, some of the delegates, including Brahmachari Devapriya Vallisinha, chief delegate for India, will tour Japan delivering lectures on Buddhism and Buddhist sacred places in India. They will also try to interest the Japanese Buddhists in the work the Society is doing in India for the propagation of Buddhism.

Brahmachari Devapriya Vallisinha also intends to visit China, Manchukuo, Penang etc., on his way back to India. He has been invited to speak at various places, and is taking with him a large number of lantern slides of ancient Indian Buddhist monuments with which the lectures will be illustrated.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING

TWO CANADIANS ON TRIAL
AT SEATTLE

Seattle, July 9.
Two Canadians, Henry Reifel, the President of the Brewers and Distillers of Vancouver, Limited, and his son George Reifel were released under a $100,000 bond each, on a charge of smuggling large quantities of liquor into the north-west Pacific area.

The Government has also brought a civil action against the defendants claiming $17,250,000 for alleged evasion of Custom dues and taxes.

Mr. Samuel Whitaker, Attorney-General, who is in charge of the case, states that it will serve as a warning to distillers all over the world that the United States will not tolerate smuggling.—Reuter.

MOTHER CALLS IT MIRACLE

Child—always fretful, never hungry—
Now has Big Appetite... is Sturdy and Strong

Doctors Advise This Natural Way to Make Child Hungry... Restore Buoyant Health!

Almost all child ailments that cause mothers so much worry are due to just one thing—authorities call it the intestinal absorption of poisons. This distressing condition occurs even when child's habits may seem regular. The stomach is upset. The child won't eat... becomes nervous and cross.

Now this insidious condition can be corrected naturally and quickly with a little Castoria which tastes so very good, children beg for it.

This remarkable preparation swiftly purges the system, banishes poisons, settles the stomach and improves digestion. Then Nature does the rest. Appetite returns. Disposition improves. And soon the child is again sturdy, healthy and sunny.

Let Castoria take care of your child's health. Give it at the first

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here's What's Smart to Wear on Dry Side of the Waves

LINEN AND NOVELTY COTTONS LEAD THE FABRICS

BY MARIAN YOUNG

SLACKS and backless shirts, dresses that button down front or back, pajamas with halter necklines, shorts in the new longer lengths—all these are what well-dressed young women will wear on bathing beaches this summer. Linen and novelty cottons are the outstanding fabrics for beach apparel and the vivid colours—blue, red, yellow, orange, green, purple and the like—are getting first place with dark, solid ones such as brown and navy blue running second.

Slacks have a debonaire look about them that smart women simply love. Slimly tailored about the hips, flaring at ankles and cut for lounging-in-the-sun-comfort, they make a girl want to spend her entire vacation in beach clothes.

A buttoned-down-the-back beach dress of natural-coloured terry cloth is worn with a synthetic silk cape in navy, light blue and white stripes.

Another beach ensemble (right) that appeals smartness plus comfort includes a natural-coloured terry cloth beach dress which buttons down the back and a cape of synthetic silk striped in navy, light blue and white with white trimming.

The sash that marks the normal waistline is of navy blue taffeta.

If you have a penchant for shorts, look at the ensembles that include blouses, shirts and skirts. The blouses are nice enough to wear with separate skirts when golfing or hiking and the skirts which button down the front can be removed easily. The shorts, longer than formerly, are made with side pleats that allow for comfort when walking, playing tennis or lounging on the beach. If cotton doesn't strike your fancy, look at flannel ones with linen tops. These, of course, do not have matching skirts.

This two-piece beach outfit of bright blue linen includes slimly tailored slacks and a backless vestee top with tailored collar.

Married Flirts

CHAPTER XLVII

Two girls were at lunch in a downtown restaurant. One was thin and eye-glassed and her blue suit wore an air of primness. The other had a merry, mischievous face, crowned by a bleached mop of permanently waved hair.

"You know what happened," she urged the other, spooning up her ice cream eagerly. "Tell me—don't be such a meanie. I'm dying to know."

"Honestly I don't," said the girl in blue whose name was Catherine Miles. "Honestly I haven't an idea. The only thing was when I came in that morning I heard Mr. Lawrence say, 'Well, I'm sorry to hear you're leaving us, Miss Gray.'"

"That's good." The blond girl finished the last of her sundae and reddened her lips with the aid of a small pocket mirror. "He's the only one who was sorry. I can tell you. She should have been eased out long ago. What I don't know about that one . . . She looked mysterious, compressing her lips."

"Well, you know lots more than you pretend to, only you're afraid to spill it," she taunted. "I heard a few things myself. That morning—the one after Mr. Weaver got back from his western trip—he stormed in like a hurricane. I was in Whiffy's office, right next to hers, and I heard plenty though I wasn't supposed to. He said to her, 'Where's that telegram?'"

Miss Catherine Miles leaned forward, putting down her cup of tea in her excitement. "He said that!"

"Yes, he did. And he was mad clean through. I thought he was going to chew the partitions. 'Where's that telegram?' he said and she said, 'I don't know what you're talking about.' Then he laid into her. He said he was going straight to Mr. Lawrence and she said, 'You don't dare.' He laughed and said why didn't he? And she said if he did she'd tell he'd been coming up to her apartment at all hours and drinking her liquor and pestering her."

"She said that!" Miss Miles went crimson all over. "Why, the—the nerve of her. I don't believe a word of it."

"Well, anyhow, he laughed again and said he wouldn't have believed it of her, though he'd been warned before what she was like. 'I thought you were just a good scout,' he said or something like that. 'I didn't know you were a snake in the grass. You tell Lawrence any lies like that and you'll be finished in this business for life.'"

"Then she started to hedge, sort of, and said naturally a girl didn't want any trouble and what did he want her to do? He had all the breaks, she said. A man always did. He didn't pay any attention to that. You could see she thought being pathetic was going to break him all up or something. He said, 'You be out of here to-morrow morning or else. . . .'"

"So she resigned," breathed Catherine Miles.

"She didn't dare do anything else," announced the girl with the tawny hair with relish. "And that's a case of good riddance if you ask me."

At Pier 57 in the heat of mid-day a limousine nosed its way among the trucks and taxis, sliding up to the curb.

"Empire sailing?" Two porters jumped on the running board and a uniformed chauffeur said something in a low voice to them. They fell away and a lady emerged from the depth of the car. She was slim, she was very beautiful, she was young. Everything about her, from the many bags in their suede casings to the pearls around her slim throat, looked costly. She looked around quickly, as though fearing notice. Then, followed by the chauffeur and the men, lugging bags, she disappeared into the crowd.

The August sun beat down upon the decks of the hugo liner. The lady came up the gangplank, looking neither to the right nor the left. A man in blue, with gilt braid on his officer's cap, saluted her and led her to the elevator. Her suite was on A deck. There was a sitting room, all delicate French furniture and damask hangings. The bedroom beyond was a blue and rose symphony and beyond could be glimpsed a gargantuan bath, all chrome plate and gleaming tile.

The lady was obviously nervous. "You wait on the pier for Mr. Hotaling," she instructed the chauffeur. "Give orders that no one is to be admitted to my suite. There may be newspaper people."

"Certainly, madam. It's too bad you didn't bring Davies. She could have fended them off for you."

She shook her head, dismissing him. The sound of hurried footsteps went past. On the deck two or three young people, gay in sport clothes, peered one damask draped window. The woman, pacing nervously to and fro, could hear suppressed giggles. "The bridal suite," she heard someone say. And she winced.

The chauffeur came back with some message. As she wrote out a direction for him, a knock came at the door.

"See if that's the steward," the woman said. "Let him in. I sent for him."

But the man at the door was not in uniform. He wore careless gray tweeds and a battered hat. He said, "I'm from the Globe, Mrs. Bliss."

She uttered a little cry. "No reporters. I said I would see no reporters." She shrank in her chair. "If you'd just make a statement? Is it true that your reported engagement to Mr. Broughton is broken?"

"I won't answer. You have no right to break into my suite this way. I'll complain to the captain, Grisson."

The chauffeur elbowed his way into the passage. "Mrs. Bliss says you're to ease out! Get that!"

The man in gray gave no sign he had heard, but continued importunately with his barrage of questions. "Is it true that Broughton's common law wife threatened you with a suit for alienation? What are your plans?"

"No statement . . . no statement," the woman chattered, her eyes flashing. "Oh, Uncle Morgan, send this man away!" This to a dignified gentleman whose white hair and pince-nez appeared over the shoulder of the newspaperman.

"You're annoying my niece, sir. Please take yourself off or, by the Lord Harry, I'll give you a whaling." Morgan Hotaling raised his ebony stick.

Lila Bliss sank back against the cushions. "Why do they persecute me like this? What have I done?"

"Hush, hush, my dear. Don't let the bouncer hear you."

"He's gone, madam," Grisson said. "Is there anything more I can do?"

"Nothing." She had her handkerchief to her eyes.

A maritime tragedy is strikingly recorded here as the liner Albert Ballin collided with the tug Merkur, by which it was being towed out of Bremerhaven, Germany. A few moments later the tug (shown slowly sinking) suddenly capsized—hurled eight men to their death.

This is a horse. American humorists have suggested that he be sent across the sea as a mount for the Prince of Wales, but his owner Lester J. Anthony, of Idaho, shown with him, wouldn't think of parting with "Shorty".

With high government officials led by Stalin acting as pallbearers, here is the impressive scene in Moscow as the urn containing the ashes of Vyacheslav Menshinsky, head of Russia's Secret Police was borne to its last resting place in the Kremlin Wall. From right to left are Stalin, Voroshilov, Molotov, and Kaganavitch.

It's in the Toledo strike war zone, but the tank isn't bent on destruction. Pushing a brush before it, it is shown cleaning up the city's streets of bricks and missiles thrown at National guardsmen by strikers of the Electric Auto-Lite company.

Japanese schoolboys of the middle schools of Tokyo and vicinity participated in army manoeuvres along the Tama river with 10,000 youths taking part in the main battle line. Photo shows some of the schoolboys, their guns stacked, eating under war time conditions.

Prayers of Iowa farmers for rain were answered a hundredfold when the heavens gushed and damaging floods swept the state, parched by months of drought. Here is a remarkable picture of the toll taken by the deluge, the wreck of a train caused by washout of tracks near Council Bluffs, Ia.

NOTICE.

Non-payment of Water Accounts.—Water accounts are posted to the person who signed the Form "G" guaranteeing payment. This person is generally the landlord or his recognized agent.

In many instances inconvenience is caused to tenants by the water supply being disconnected without warning to them, owing to the failure of the guarantor to pay the accounts within the specified period. Tenants are, therefore, advised to make suitable arrangements with their landlords to ensure that all water accounts are paid promptly. Changes of ownership of property should be notified immediately to this Office.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Long Lost Father," RKO-Radio's comedy-drama, from G. B. Stern's novels, stars John Barrymore, at the King's Theatre, on Thursday, as a father who is the toast of London's night life, and pursued by countless women, but despised by his own daughter. In "Long Lost Father" Barrymore is Carl Bellairs, manager of a fashionable cabaret to which Lindsey Lane, his daughter, comes to dance. Carl deserted Lindsey when she was a babe in arms, and throughout her life, the daughter has fostered sheer hate for her renegade parent. Now Carl essays to govern Lindsey, as a father does his child. She studiously resists him. The debonair and suave Carl, seeking the love of a daughter in a paternal way, encounters greater difficulty than in his encounters with strange women. Ernest H. Schoedsack directed "Long Lost Father" from an adaptation by Dwight Taylor. Helen Chandler and Donald Cook play featured roles in Barrymore's support, with Alan Mowbray, E. E. Olive, Reginald Sharland, Natalie Moorhead and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

"I Loved a Woman" Maxwell Arnow, casting director for First National, insists that any famous character of history can be portrayed more than adequately by some of the many character actors in Hollywood. That is why he sent for E. J. Ratcliffe when he found that Theodore Roosevelt, wielder of the "big stick" was to be prominent in "I Loved a Woman," the latest Edward G. Robinson starring vehicle which opens on Thursday at the Alhambra. The value of Ratcliffe's extraordinary resemblance to Teddy Roosevelt was only realized long after both statesman and actor had become famous in their respective fields. For fifty years he has been prominently identified with both the English and American theatres. "I Loved a Woman" is a sensational drama centring about a millionaire meat-packer who seeks to gain world food control to please a woman whom he secretly loves. Roosevelt comes into the story through his prosecution of meat to Spanish War veterans. Edward G. Robinson has the role of the unusual hero with Kay Francis, as his innamorata. Others in the cast are Genevieve Tobin, Robinson's wife and the other woman in the love triangle, J. Farrell MacDonald, Henry Kolker, Robert Barrat, George Blackwood, Murray Kinnell and Henry O'Neill.

"Cohens and Kellys in Troubles" The famous Seven Years War is over! George Sidney and Charlie Murray, co-starring in "The Cohens and Kellys in Troubles," their seventh picture together, refuse to go on with their racial hostilities, and the result is that when the picture comes to the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, the public will find them united against a belligerent world. In the last six pictures of the "Cohens and Kellys" series, Sidney and Murray have showed, showed, kicked, bitten and smacked each other through Atlantic City, Scotland, Paris and Hollywood, not to mention Africa and a few other places. They quarrel over their difference in race, over their business, their children, their wives, marriage and divorce.

"3 On A Honeymoon"

Featuring Sally Eilers and ZaSu Pitts, "3 On A Honeymoon," Fox Film's latest, comedy romance, opens at the King's Theatre to-day. The picture, directed by James Tinling, is said to be a delectable, gay and giddy romance of a spoiled and willful girl who has been leading a hectic existence. Charlie Starrett, the young man who gave so excellent a performance in "Mr. Skitch," has the masculine lead opposite Sally Eilers. The comedy situations, of which there are said to be many, are portrayed by that hilarious comedienne, ZaSu Pitts. The other members of the cast are Henretta Crossman, Irene Hervey, John Mack Brown, Russell Simpson and Cornelius Keefe.

"Whistling in the Dark"

With Ernest Truex, internationally famed comedian, heading a cast of film favourites in a film version of one of his greatest Broadway successes, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Whistling in the Dark" is showing from Thursday at the Queen's Theatre. Also prominent in the cast are Una Merkel, one of the screen's most popular comedienne; Edward Arnold, who was in the original stage cast; with Truex; John Miljan, C. Henry Gordon, Johnny Hines, Joseph Cawthorn, Nat Pendleton, Tenen Holtz and Marcello Corday. "Whistling in the Dark" is the story of a mystery novel author forced to devise a "perfect crime" for his young novel. He plans to kill a man who is far away on a speeding train. In "Whistling in the Dark," Ernest Truex is making his first appearance in talking pictures, although he starred in films in several silent productions. On the stage he starred in "The Fall Guy," both in New York and London, and is the only American of the modern stage to win a permanent place in the London theatre, where he kept England laughing for four continuous years.

"Laughing Boy"

Ramon Novarro portrays a starring role with Lupe Velez as the feminine lead in "Laughing Boy," stirring Indian drama filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios from the famous Pulitzer Prize story, by Oliver La Farge. The picture is showing to-day and to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. The story from which the new picture was adapted was one of America's "best-sellers" of a few years ago, and is probably the most widely read Indian story ever printed. It concerns the life of a young Navajo Indian who comes from the mountain regions of his reservation home to learn of life and love. Col. W. S. Van Dyke, famous globe trotting director, noted for such successes as "White Horn," "Eskimo," and recently the fight drama "Pitche-lighter and the Lady," handled direction of the film.

"Son of a Sailor"

"Son of a Sailor," the newest First National screen comedy for Joe E. Brown, which is showing at the Alhambra Theatre, is said to be the most laugh-provoking vehicle ever assigned to this star. It is a comedy of navy life. Al Cohn and Paul Gorrard Smith supplied the story, which carries its hero from the sailor's hammock aboard the aircraft carrier of the Pacific fleet to misadventures in a wealthy home and back again to the decks of the warship. "Handsome" is the boastful, hopeful, the wistful, is said to represent one of Joe E. Brown's major film achievements. The star's supporting cast for "Son of a Sailor" is one of the finest he has ever had. In important roles are such screen notables as Johnny Mack Brown, Thelma Todd, Jean Muir, the new First National "discovery," who has been the cause of great enthusiasm and high expectations in Hollywood: Frank McHugh, Shelly Long, Kenneth Thomson, George Blackwood and Myrna Kennedy.

AUSTRALIAN "HELLO" GIRLS' WORK

More than 9,000 calls have been registered in Sydney alone under the "Wake Me Early" and "Appointments Reminder" services instigated by the Australian Postal Department last year.

These are two of many innovations made to stimulate business. Another is the Key Town plan. To increase the use of long distance telephones by business firms and their travellers, a robot is allowed according to the time used in calls, says Austral News.

The fixed time calls on trunk lines enable calls to be booked in advance for a specified time.

The "Demand System" is designed to connect trunk line calls, whenever traffic permits, at time of lodgment, while the calling subscriber remains at the telephone. The trunk line person-to-person call costs 3d for stations not more than 100 miles away, and 6d over that distance. It ensures that the person called will be advised of the time that the conversation shall commence.

Calls to non-subscribers may be made in the same manner as trunk-line calls by nominating the person and the address. Arrangements are made at the district office to have the recipient of the call brought to the nearest public telephone.

The Department has also detailed an officer to instruct students at business colleges on the operation of private exchange switchboards.

SOLDIER BITTEN BY DOG

LATEST CASE TO BE REPORTED

Private Wilson, of the Lincolnshire Regiment, is one of the latest cases reported to the authorities of persons being attacked and bitten by dogs.

The animal in this case is a black and white terrier belonging to a man named Tso, of 112, Lockhart Road. It bit Private Wilson as he was passing the house. The dog has been sent to Kennedy Town for observation.

Suffering from hydrophobia, a Chinese woman aged 46 years was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday. She was bitten by a dog some six weeks ago when coming ashore from a junk at Hunghom, but her condition did not become serious until yesterday, when friends took her to the hospital. She is in a critical condition.

The French naval sloop Savorgnan de Brazza left port this morning for Amoy.

Girls who sit out dances don't always stand in well.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS.

ONLY ONE PERSON KILLED LAST MONTH

Only one fatal traffic accident occurred on the island last month, a Chinese woman being knocked down and killed by a motor bus in Queen's Road Central on June 24. A total of 98 accidents were reported to the Police authorities during the month, and fifty persons were injured as a result of these traffic mishaps.

The largest number of accidents were caused by private motor cars, which were involved in 44 accidents and injured 29 persons. Motor lorries were involved in 23 accidents, five persons being injured, and 15 accidents were attributed to public motor cars, which caused injuries to six persons.

Injuries were sustained in all four cases in which motor cycles were involved. Two persons were injured in five motor bus accidents and there were two accidents involving hand trucks.

Tram-cars were involved in five accidents during the month, four persons being injured.

FACTORY CONTROL.

SHANGHAI PROBLEM UNDER REVIEW IN LONDON

London, July 9. Mr. Li Ping-hang, Chinese delegate to the International Labour Conference at Geneva, who is visiting here, held conversations with Lord Stanhope to-day regarding the enforcement of the Chinese Factory Act at Shanghai.

According to Chinese information the British view is that several details need to be threshed out before the Chinese proposals can be made workable.

The international status of Shanghai precludes any separate action by an individual power, it is felt.

The conversations were most friendly, and Mr. Li returned to Geneva later in the day. It was learned later that Lord Stanhope told Mr. Li that while he viewed the Chinese proposals with much sympathy it was essentially a matter for discussion between the local administrations. Britain would at all times use such influence as she possessed with a view to securing a fully satisfactory outcome of the discussions, he added.—Reuter.

ROYAL FUNERAL.

BURIAL OF PRINCE HENRY TO-MORROW

The funeral of the late His Royal Highness Henry, Prince of the Netherlands, Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Consort of Her Majesty Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands, who died at the Hague on July 3, will take place at Delft to-morrow.

The Court has gone into half mourning for one month. The offices of the local Consulate General will be closed on the day of the funeral.

The half masting of the Dutch flag will be discontinued after the date of the funeral.

Vessels of the J. C. J. L. line in port yesterday flew their flags at half-mast.

PRINCE'S ILLNESS.

DUCHESS OF YORK TO STAY IN LONDON

London, July 9. The Duke of York's office here to-day issued a statement to the effect that His Royal Highness was still confined to bed with a poison of finger and that the Duchess of York had cancelled her visit to Scotland.

Their Majesties the King and Queen, however, left for Edinburgh this morning aboard a special train.—United Press.

stronger in this department of the game. On both sides there is batting down to number nine at least. But the bowling is a more doubtful quality, and it will very largely depend on who comes off. The one thing that strikes me is that Oxford have not got a fast bowler as far as I can see. R. G. Tindall is only medium as far as I know. He did not get a wicket at Lord's last year but during the season took twenty-six wickets for 33.19 apiece. Barlow is a slow medium stock bowler. Singleton, a left hand turner who has been described as "something more than an understudy to Barlow," gets in as a Freshers and has "bowled on" during the season. J. H. Dyson is a slow left-hander, and Mitchell Innes has been known to "take wickets." But, unless there is a sticky wicket, I cannot think it is a strong bowling side.

CAMBRIDGE. On the whole the Cambridge bowling seems a trifle more convincing. Jehangir Khan, who has been out of the side with a strain for a month, seems to have got back to form again. He took five wickets against Sussex, while the other bowlers at the door of the side for three years, A. G. Polham of Essex—a fastish medium bowler—has done pretty well. Grimshaw is probably a bit faster than he is, while F. King of Dulwich and Christie (P. not J.S.M.—there isn't no such person) has done very well at times.

Human will have to rely on these four as his mainstay of attack though he has been known to get wickets himself with his slow leg-breaker, while Davies is now supposed known as "the man who bowled Bradman." But both of these trumblers are apt to be very expensive.

BAD LUCK.

That both sides are strong there is no doubt. For Cambridge in an ordinary year, Dinwiddie (of Kent Second eleven) J. H. Cameron (Taunton and St. Catherine's), D. Roughton (Private and Emmanuel) the fast bowler, T. R. Garnett (Charterhouse and Magdalen), M. S. Hockley (Eton) and Trinity (Trinity) might well have got their Blues. While at Oxford, R. G. Stainton does his place, and A. J. Wrofor-Drowa (Charterhouse and Worcester), T. M. Watson (Monkton Combe and Dulwich) and E. J. K. L. T. Jackson (Rugby and Trinity) have been unlucky. Neither of the 1932 old Blues, E. N. Evans or A. R. Legard have had a trial—even in the Seniors! I don't know if the first named is up, but Legard was said to be bowling very well in the nets, and in view of Oxford's lack of fast bowling I am surprised he has not been tried.

THE STUMPERS.

A. G. Powell keeps for Cambridge. A third year man, he has been overshadowed by J. T. Gower before, but he is a good keeper and a very useful bat. N. S. Knight, of Uppingham and Wadhwa, is the Oxford stumper. A second year man he had no chance last season against P. O. Oldfield who has now gone down. His rival this year is A. C. B. (Bromsgrove and B. N. C.). He was much fancied early on, and one is tempted to wonder whether the fact that Chalk of B.N.C. the captain, already had six B.N.C. men in the side may have kicked the scale against him. By the way, this does not necessarily imply favouritism. It is natural that good Freshers should (ceteris paribus, which means scholarships excepted) go up to the College with the big cricket reputation. Until a year or so ago Fennor, Cambridge, occupied a similar position. P.S.—Since writing the above notes I have come to the conclusion that the Minor Counties Match, being played over three days should count as first class. If so, another draw must be added to the given figures, and two centuries, J. S. Smead (104) and N. S. Mitchell Innes (140). But the only Blue who turned out was D. F. Walker.

"Marko come yet?" She shuddered. "I told him not to. He simply mustn't. They'd have his picture in all the tabloids. Besides, I didn't want to see him."

"The thing is over then?" She frowned. "Of course. She threatened me—threatened both of us. My nerves won't stand it. I had to get away. New people—new places."

"You know of her existence before then?" It was the lawyer speaking now, not the concerned male relative.

"Oh, I had heard of her—naturally. I didn't suppose it was important. All men..."

"Lila, dear," interrupted the other. "I don't like to hear you talk like that. It's flippant. It's unbecoming."

She shrugged her shoulders. "Well, anyhow... Marko's been very nice about it. He said I ought to have a change. Perhaps when I come back things will have arranged themselves."

"I doubt it."

"Anyhow, I'm grateful to you, dear, for standing by me so splendidly, with Aunt Marion and all the rest against me."

Lila would employ this manner with males to her dying day. This one—elderly, precise, conventional—responded to it as she had expected him to. He said, "Not at all. You're the victim of circumstances, my child. Nothing more. Aunt Marion simply doesn't understand."

Lila kissed him fondly. He was a bit of a lamb. No one else understood her so well. Aunt Marion and her cousins had been horrified all through her trouble. They had never liked her—had always been jealous of her because she was beautiful. Women!

After he had gone she began to feel a trifle lonely. Had she been wrong not to bring her maid? But then she had felt she wanted to be alone. There was an engraved list of passengers on board and she picked it up, reading it avidly. One name caught her eyes: "The Marquis of Emelin-Dare."

Why, that was the handsome young man she had met at Caunes two or three seasons ago when she had been visiting the Dentons. He was a delightful Englishman. He had been poor as poverty then but he had since come into a lot of money through the death of a relative. Lila snatched over to the dressing table and touched her hair speculatively. She looked a fright. She would ring up the beauty shop and have a facial. Maybe she would not keep to her cabin all the way, as she had threatened, but dine in the main saloon. After all, she had been terribly shut up for the past month. She owed it to herself to take an interest in life. She was young.

The Marquis was young, too. And Marko Broughton was old. Poor Marko! Maybe it had been providential that woman had made such a fuss. He had been very generous with Lila. She would send him a radiogram presently. It would be friendly and cheerful and sisterly in tone. Then she would change and go on deck. Those dreadful reporters would be gone.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET DULL

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was dull yesterday. The Wall Street Journal reports:—The rise in United States Government bonds to new high levels plus the spurt in cotton futures as the result of the sharp reduction in acreage absorbed trading interest account. The stock market was very dull, fluctuating very narrowly, except for a few specials, including several sugar stocks, which reached new high levels for the year. Steel shares were steady due to sharply increased mill operations, the Steel Institute reporting 27.5% of capacity compared with 23% of capacity last week. Traders were harried due to Mr. Pecora being reported to have said that the acts of the Stock Commission will be constructive. Curb were irregularly lower and were very dull. Bonds were irregularly higher, though German issues were steadier. Prices of wheat were downward owing to the increasing visible supply on the heavy South-Western crop movement. Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz's New York office report:—Stocks: Prices were virtually unchanged in an extremely dull session. Business done: $20,000,000. Grains: Prices declined under hedging pressure, together with a larger visible supply, which showed an increase of over 8,000,000 bushels. The market is badly over-sold and will recover sharply shortly. Cotton: The strength of the market was principally due to commission-house buying on the bullish Government acreage report. Profit-taking and Southern selling checked the advance. More interest is reported in dry goods, but there is no increase in business or in prices. Spot cotton is quiet, but the basis is firm. Rubber: Steady. Business is stagnant, awaiting fresh developments.

BRITAIN'S LIMIT

Despite the very definite declaration by Mr. Anthony Eden a few days ago that Britain has already gone so far as she can go in the direction of territorial security on the Continent, the visit of M. Barthou to London is being seized upon as indicating the possibility of a new and wider Anglo-French understanding. Mr. Eden made it perfectly clear in his speech that whilst Britain stands by the Locarno Treaties, she has no intention of extending her commitments thereunder to other parts of Europe with which she is not so intimately concerned. The issue has now been taken a step further by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, who categorically states that Britain is not entering into any new alliances whatever. The British view on the question of guarantees and security ought to be well known by this time. Britain's traditional aversion to accept precisely defined commitments on the Continent must always remain a guiding motive of policy for a people which is conscious of being a world power as well as a European power. The well departure by the Treaty Locarno from tradition was made the holder because it omitted to bind any part of the British Commonwealth except the European part. And further than this England is unlikely to go. The one inducement for her to accept obligations both wide and precise in Europe, or farther afield, would be the promise of a new and better order. If there were a real prospect that her adherence would make effective the establishment of a collective system of security with reduced armaments, it is possible that popular consent might be won to a general guarantee of execution for an Arms Convention. But, despite careful exploration of the ground, no such indication is at present forthcoming. France, for reasons of her own, does not feel justified in making any reduction of military material or personnel; indeed, in view of possible German rearmament, she wishes to keep her hands entirely free. But the British public would never agree to give guarantees as a counterpart to German rearmament up to a purely defensive level. A general guarantee of security can clearly only be given in return for a general reduction. It goes with disarmament, not rearmament. And, unhappily, at the moment there are no signs that a satisfactory Disarmament Convention is likely to be devised. In the circumstances, it is patent that Britain cannot go further than she already has in the direction of continental commitments.

NOTES OF THE DAY

CHOPPED DOLLARS

There is an obvious weakness in the official argument which seeks to justify disinclination to do anything to remove the chopped dollar nuisance. Despite the fact that complaints of a ramp in defaced coins have been sponsored by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, which ought to know something about the matter, the Treasury insists that there are not enough in circulation to worry about. If the official contention is soundly based, does not that present a stronger reason why an effort should be made to get them out of circulation? If such as do exist were accepted at their face value—by an arrangement between the banks and the Treasury—and retained for re-minting, there would soon be no more grumbling. The fewer there are about, the smaller the comparatively trivial loss, while a constant source of annoyance would disappear. In short, the public interest still demands that something be done. If there are a great number of chopped dollars going from hand to hand and made the medium for a money-changers' ramp, a means should be found of stopping it. If the number is relatively small, no great trouble or loss would be involved in reducing them to nil.

TOUR OF THE TROPICS

The old theory that the white man is apt to deteriorate when he stays in the tropics too long seems to have received official confirmation by act of Congress. President Roosevelt gave his endorsement by signing the Logan bill, which renounces the former requirement that army, navy and marine corps officers must remain at their posts for at least three years when assigned to duty at tropical stations, and leaves the length of their tour of duty to the discretion of the president. Evidence heard by a committee, says a Senate report, showed that "because of the conditions, climatic, social, and otherwise, prevailing in the various foreign service stations," the minds of officers were strained so badly that a considerable number were violently insane. Now it will be possible to feed tropics to the officers in smaller doses. And an old theory, beloved of novelists, is confirmed.

ANIMALS DUMB?

The man or woman who professes to be fond of animals and is convinced that his or her pet understands a half-dozen familiar commands may be surprised to learn that several "animal dictionaries" have been written. Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet, has announced that he will include a complete glossary of the canine language in his new book, "Lives of Illustrious Dogs," which is to be modelled after Plutarch's "Lives." Other animals whose vocabularies have been recorded are the monkey, the horse, and the cat. An American woman was responsible for classifying 32 terms of the chimpanzee, together with the meaning of each. Other scientists have tabulated 12 "words" of the marmoset language and 14 of the gibbon's. The horse is said to speak with "six words" and three kinds of neighing. Cats produce 16 sounds, according to the experts, each with its distinct interpretation. There are 12 "words" in the hen's vocabulary and 6 in the rooster's. It seems high time that the phrase, "our dumb friends," went into disuse.

A MERITED TRIBUTE

A philosopher has said, "He whom one age stones, another anathematizes." While it may be exaggeration to apply that maxim to the case in mind, it warns the hearts of that generation which stole with trepidation into the attic to revel in the exploits of Deadwood Dick to learn that recognition has come at last to the favourite author of their youth. A bronze-plated cobblestone monument is to be erected in America to the memory of Deadwood Dick Clark, scout, frontiersman, and hero of the novels. The Deadwood Dick thrillers were not literature, it is true. There may have been justice in the parental threat to apply the rod to the luckless youngsters caught reading them. But memory of them comes back for a moment like a fresh, clean breeze as one turns in disgust from the mass of drivel and worse that masquerades to-day as literature among our more "advanced" readers. And Deadwood Dick fans of another day silently cheer those who have remembered across the year to pay tribute to the hero who thrilled them as he triumphed over his foes.

THE MAHATMA ON TOUR

By EVERARD COTES

"GO to the Harijans—untouchables—sweep their roads, enter their houses and wash their children."

Such is the terse call to the stark realities of social service which that remarkable leader of Indian Nationalism, Mr. Mohandas K. Gandhi, has been preaching from village to village in a tour from one end of the subcontinent of India to the other.

The words quoted are from a speech made to Indian university students at Nagpur, Central Provinces, by this former barrister of the Inner Temple, who is known among his own people as "the Mahatma," or great-souled one.

Mr. Gandhi's tour is to arouse 180,000,000 Hindus of the higher castes to the need for better treatment for 40,000,000 of their less fortunate fellows belonging to what are known as the "depressed classes" or "untouchables."

The depressed classes—officially estimated at 20 per cent of the total population of British India—have for centuries been debarred by their neighbours the elemental rights of human existence. They live under a perpetual system of ostracism. They are denied access to public wells and temples. Their lot in one part of India is such that an "untouchable" proceeding along a public road, finds himself compelled by his fellows to shout in order to warn other wayfarers of the risk of caste pollution that is near.

Mr. Gandhi has long been a powerful advocate of Indian social reform. His present mission has touched Hindu imagination. Enthusiastic crowds have gathered to hear him wherever he has halted. He is being acclaimed chiefly as a great nationalist leader and Hindu ascetic, but partly also because educated Indians feel he is seeking to remedy what the best of them regard as a reproach to their civilization.

Europeans in India agree that good is being done, even though they find also that politics as well as philanthropy comes in.

Mr. Gandhi, it is pointed out, has not ceased to be connected with passive resistance to the existing Indian system of law and order. It is recalled that the personal freedom that has made Mr. Gandhi's present tour possible is due to his having been unconditionally released last September from prison where he was serving a one year's sentence for disobeying the law in the furtherance of an anti-Government movement in the Bombay presidency. His release was in consequence of fears for his health felt by the Government owing to a fast which he threatened to continue to a fatal climax.

He is still honouring a declaration he made on Sept. 14 last when he announced that he would not himself again participate in aggressive civil resistance until after Aug. 3, 1934, when the unserved portion of his sentence of imprisonment expires.

He remains the chief—if for the moment the otherwise employed—leader of the Indian National Congress, a body still actively supporting civil resistance. The dual nature of his position is disclosed in a statement issued on Nov. 24, 1933, to his political followers.

In this statement he bids those engaged in civil resistance to the Government to keep their activities in this respect apart from those of the reform movement for the untouchables.

"While congressmen who are at so civil registers on active service," he writes, "may do as they are bound to do, such service to the cause as they can, they may not belong to the Servants of the Untouchables Society or to any of its branches."

Objection felt in British circles in India to the continuation of the situation thus disclosed leaves the merits of the untouchable movement unaffected. These merits have been well served by a happy idea of Mr. Gandhi in naming his organ "Harijan," which means "children of the supreme essence."

Facts he has collected in this organ throw lurid light upon conditions still existing among the humble folk he is trying to help. The extremity of the poverty of the untouchables is brought out in a pathetic note in the Harijan of Nov. 24. This note records the award to one Ghanashyam Prasad Chamar of Damoh of a scholarship worth three rupees ($1 a month) to enable this student "to continue his studies in the high school." One dollar a month apparently means ability to Ghanashyam to raise himself to the level of other men.

Other good deeds are put on record. "Meetings," we are told, "were held at Damoh and Harad to persuade chammars (low caste leather workers) to give up carrying eating. Wells were thrown open for Harijans at the great fair in Khandawa district." The society received "two maunds (160 pounds) of soap from the Bilia soap factory for distribution among the students." This, Mr. Gandhi's organ adds, "has contributed to a great improvement in the personal cleanliness of the students."

Other entries mention the throwing open of certain temples to members of the depressed classes. Another note says "false rumours among the barbers, washermen and cobblers say that the members of these (low caste) communities would be taken for sacrifice at some supposed bridge." The society, the Harijan adds, "had instructed its teachers and students of different bustees (hamlets) to inform the inhabitants by beat of drum of the baselessness of such rumours."

At Elhom, North Malabar, in November, untouchables showed "assertiveness as a result of the uplift work done among them." The Harijan goes on to describe how the untouchables actually began "freely using the public footpath running through the village." It adds that the untouchables were thereupon attacked by their neighbours and "hunted from house to house like wild animals." A list of resultant casualties follows including those of two men and two women in hospital with head wounds.

On Nov. 3, Mr. Gandhi's organ notices a case then pending before the courts in Kheda, Gujarat, where untouchables had been

The Very Idea!
YOUR SON'S CAREER.

By George
DEAR Mothers and Fathers,—Is your progeny a little snivelling wretch with no teeth, a few wisps of scraggy hair, and a leaning towards rickets?

Well, now is the time to look into the future and plan out for him a noble career.

Don't wait until he goes to school.

It may be too late.

By then he will have mixed with other children, absorbed their ideas on Socialism, picked out his favourite film star, and generally settled his ideas on life.

Follow our method and catch 'em young—if you want son to follow in daddy's footsteps, make him respect his father. It has been done in the past.

If you want him to become a great man and show a propensity for playing marbles, remember that the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. The Duke of Wellington said that to prove he had a good education.

Mussolini began in a small way with tin soldiers and finished up with real soldiers wearing shirts.

Start your son off with tin soldiers and he may finish up wearing other people's shirts. If he is not a bookie he may be a butler in which case he will be more concerned with getting the sack than losing his shirt.

Talking of races, it's not every horse you can put your shirt on—unless you are of the Lord Derby build (and then the horse probably wouldn't stand it).

But getting back to your son, you must watch early for the little signs that point out success in his particular line.

If he is bowlegged he will probably make a jockey but not a professional goalkeeper.

If his eyes are crossed he is probably a potential detective already in disguise, but he is certainly not a dentist, a traffic cop, or a snooker player.

If his fingers are clumsy he will probably do well for himself on the cash register of some thriving business, but will never win a thread-the-needle race or gain distinction as a pick-pocket.

Should he prove to be a dunce at school, the odds are that he will prove a brilliant politician, and if he can be induced to take to a curved pipe early enough he may rise to occupy the Prime Minister's chair or a detective's dressing gown.

We repeat, watch your son. He may be in the pantry now!

NATURE STUDIES

(Extracts From Little Ada's Exercise Book).

The elephant is a large animal kept for the amusement of good children and is kind, industrious, and gentle.

It earns its living at home by eating cakes and sweets but at other places it carries logs and blows a trumpet.

Some silly children have a rhyme that "the elephant is a dainty bird and hops from tree to tree." This is untrue and teacher says we should have more sense than to believe it.

The elephant carries a little felt apron in its trunk for use in the jungle where there are many flies and mosquitoes, and as an additional protection against these insects it is mounted with two big tusks.

Although the elephant is a very gentle natured beast, it is apt to get mad when big game hunters shoot at it. The great thing about shooting elephants is to hit them in a vital place straight away, as a bullet in the behind only makes them angry and is not very good for the hide.

Elephants have taken up dancing, acrobatics, and juggling with some success and apart from the indigestion caused by having to consume a large number of cakes and sweets daily, they manage to have a fairly good time.

The elephant can easily be distinguished from the newt, the latter confining its activities to the water and being invariably much smaller than the elephant.

Owing to the value of its tusks, the elephant has always been a bone of contention.

"I can't help worrying about Willie; he always catches cold when he goes out in the rain like this."

KIPPAX IN HOSPITAL

AUSTRALIAN TEST TEAM EXAMINED

BACKS TO THE WALL

London, July 9. Australia are fighting with their backs to the wall to avoid defeat in the Third Test.

To avoid a follow-on, their first innings must realise 478 runs and although their batsmen fought stubbornly to reach this score yesterday, they were still 55 runs short at the close of play, with two wickets to fall.

Everything appears to depend upon Chipperfield. In view of his indisposition it had been decided that he would not bat to-day unless an emergency arose. When six wickets had fallen for 411 he was called upon. Two further wickets were soon lost, both to Verity, but Chipperfield, with the assistance of O'Reilly, played out time. Only Wall has still to go in.

A VERITY WICKET?

The play after tea suggested that the pitch was developing into a Verity wicket and if this belief is borne out to-day, the Australians must regard themselves as definitely up against it.

Another shock has been administered by a serious development in the illness of Kippax. Reuter reports that he has been sent to hospital suffering from tonsillitis and that swabs have been taken of the throats of the entire Australian team.

LARWOOD GIVES AN INTERVIEW

"Time Public Knew The Truth"

"It is time the public knew the truth," says Harold Larwood, the England and Nottinghamshire fast bowler, in an exclusive statement in the Sunday Express.

"I have definitely made up my mind not to play against the Australians in any tests. I doubt if I shall ever play against the Australians again, at least in big cricket. I have not forgotten that two years ago Woodfull said there are two teams playing and one is not playing cricket. Woodfull has never taken back that statement, which was a direct thrust at Jardine and myself.

"The M.C.C. have given way to political or other influences, which were determined at all costs to placate Australia and conveniently forgot how we won the last series of tests.

SELECTORS' PLANS.

"I heard I was not to be played in the first Test in any case. If England could win without me, then I would not be played at all, and that would placate the people who feared cricket was going to burst the Empire."

"If I intended to play, I should certainly bowl leg theory. If the captain interfered with the disposition of my field I would refuse to bowl any more and walk from the wicket. It is, perhaps, just as well that it won't happen.

"If I was right in Australia I must be right now. The M.C.C. are shilly-shallying, trying to be for and against leg theory at the same time.

"Jardine has been treated disgracefully, because of the misguided desire of politicians not to offend desire of politicians not to offend the Australians who sympathized, not because they were hurt, but because they could not make runs against leg theory."

MISSIONARY DIES IN CANTON

PASSING OF MR. P. W. ROBERTSON

Canton, July 9. The death occurred on Friday of Mr. Peter Walter Robertson, one of the oldest missionaries in South China. He had been ailing for several months following a fall he had some considerable time ago. The funeral took place at the Macao Fort cemetery.

Mr. Robertson will be very much missed by the many friends he had in Canton. Both Canadians, he and his wife, who were a most devoted couple, came out to China, unattached to any special mission, after the death of their only son, who had been a missionary in China for several years, and the old people therefore took it upon themselves to come out in his stead. In his memory, Mr. Robertson was 75 years of age. Much sympathy is felt for the widow in her bereavement.—Our Own Correspondent.

THREE EUROPEANS CAUTIONED

CHARGED WITH TRAFFIC OFFENCES

A. G. Piovanni, manager of the Peninsula Hotel, was cautioned by Mr. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a summons for having failed to keep to the left hand side of the road when rounding the bend at the junction of Stubbs Road and Morrison Hill Road on June 23.

Traffic Inspector Nicol stated that defendant came down Stubbs Road and turned into Morrison Gap Road. He rounded the bend on the off side, and Mr. R. P. Edwards, who was driving from east to west along Queen's Road East, was forced to get into the footpath to avoid a collision.

Defendant said the traffic lights were in his favour. The road was wet, and he was driving a big car. Seeing there was no traffic on the road, he deliberately took the bend wide to avoid skidding. Mr. Edwards, who was driving a small car, apparently lost his head, and started going across the road. He passed Mr. Edwards' car on the left side.

E. Bathurst, of the Chinese Maritime Customs, was cautioned on a summons for having driven private car No. 2199 in Magazine Gap Road, which is closed to traffic without permission.

L. C. M. Stark, driver of private car No. 2700, was also cautioned for having driven down Wyndham Street, which is closed to traffic, without permission. Defendant came up Wellington Street, and turned into Wyndham Street.

POLISH WOMAN DEPORTED

FROM CANTON WITH-OUT PASSPORT

Leokajna Matusiak, aged 36 years, a Polish woman, was charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having entered the Colony without a valid passport on or about July 6.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said defendant's passport was examined when she came to register yesterday morning. It was found she did not have a visa. She stated she had come from Canton on a visit to a friend, and was not aware of the regulations. The visa rules were well-known to foreigners in China. Defendant was living at No. 2 Lock Road, which was a boarding house run by Mr. Lanpart.

The prosecuting officer also stated he had been instructed by Mr. Scott, Assistant Superintendent of Police, to ask that an expulsion order be made against defendant. Defendant said she wanted to go to Shanghai instead of to Canton.

Sergeant Mottram added that the Empress of Russia was leaving on July 13, and Mr. Hamilton accordingly made an expulsion order to come into effect from that date, and also imposed a nominal fine of $10 on defendant, warning her not to come back again.

Mr. Lewis, of 26 Carnarvon Road, was fined $10 by Mr. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for allowing his dog out in Kimberley Road without a muzzle at 7.30 a.m. on June 17.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

BELIEF CONSISTS IN ACCEPTING THE AFFIRMATIONS OF THE SOUL; UNBELIEF, IN DENYING THEM.—Enclosure.

The Empress of Russia (from Manila) is due here at 7.30 a.m. tomorrow and will berth at Kowloon Wharf.

Two Chinese came to blows yesterday in Tai Fung Shan Street, when disputing a gambling debt, and one, Wong San, was sent to hospital with a serious stab wound in the side which may prove fatal.

In a collision with a motor-car in Chatham Road yesterday, a young Chinese, Liu Siu, riding a bicycle, was thrown off his seat and seriously injured in the face and about the body. He was taken to the Kowloon Hospital.

R. G. Stott, of No. 1 Essex Crescent, was fined $3 by Mr. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for taking out a licence for his dog which was found in Cumberland Road on June 10 at 6.30 a.m. Defendant told the Court that the dog had since been destroyed.

When Wong Kan-po, unemployed, was charged before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with the theft of three silver dollars from No. 4 Belcheria Street, ground floor, it was stated by Sergeant Fraser that defendant had engaged a prostitute and while she was away from the cubicle stole the money from a drawer. Mr. M. W. Lo, appeared for the defendant, and asked for a remand until tomorrow which was granted.

HICKMAN TRIAL

ACCUSED TO GIVE EVIDENCE

SAN FRANCISCO SENSATION

(Special to "Telegraph")

San Francisco, July 9.

The immense public interest excited by the trial of Millard Hickman, charged with the last murder of Louise Jeppesen, was revealed by the packed galleries and the hundreds outside unable to gain admittance.

The selection of the jurors for the trial, which is being heard before Judge Lyle Jacks, has started. The attorney for the defence informed the court that Hickman would go into the witness box and give evidence on oath regarding the events and his movements of the fatal evening.

The prosecution made it clear that they intended to demand sentence of death.

THE CHARGE.

Hickman, 45 years of age, is charged with the murder of Louise Jeppesen, a 22-year-old school teacher. The violated corpse was found in a tunnel in Golden Gate Park on Sunday morning, May 13. The victim had been criminally attacked after a drinking party during which she "passed out." She had arrived in San Francisco from Utah only two months before her death and slipped readily into a gay life.

The prosecution alleges that Miss Jeppesen was left in Hickman's flat by other members of the party, that Hickman and the girl left together at 3 a.m. and that she was never again seen alive.

The defence rests upon an alibi in the evidence of another girl of the party, a Miss McKay who says that Hickman telephoned her and spent the night with her, calling at her flat at the time the crime is believed to have been committed.—United Press.

MAHATMA GANDHI NEAR A BREAK-DOWN

Lahore, July 9. The health of Mahatma Gandhi, champion of the lower classes of India in their long struggle for recognition as a political force, is perilously near the breaking-point. His health has been impaired lately by his strenuous work on behalf of the depressed classes and according to his chief lieutenant his condition is serious. It may necessitate a curtailment of the programme in connection with Gandhi's forthcoming visit here.

He might well collapse under the strain of the many ceremonies planned, it is felt. Gandhi's health was known to be seriously affected by his last two hunger strikes. It was thought that he would not rally from his last long fast. But though his remarkable vitality survived the days of starvation, it has noticeably weakened.—Reuter.

THE OUTLOOK IN AMERICA

FEAR OF HIGHER LIVING COSTS

Washington, July 9. It is expected that the N.R.A. Administration will be remodelled. The Federal Service Relief Corporation will buy during July, 3,000,000 yards of cotton ticking, as part of their intended ultimate purchase of a total of 20,000,000 yards. They will also buy 250,000 bales of cotton.

Substantial advance in the prices of commodities are expected, but there is a fear that this will cause a too rapid rise in living costs, creating serious social unrest.

New silver certificates will be designated as legal tender as well as other paper money. It will be possible to issue certificates against bullion since the certificate will not designate that a silver dollar has been deposited in the Treasury for the redemption of the certificate but that the holder will be entitled to a dollar in silver for the certificate held.

A new set-up of the Federal Reserve system under Treasury control is expected to be recommended by the Treasury at the next session of Congress.—Seaw, Cudbertson and Fritz.

CORPORAL DIES IN HOSPITAL

MILITARY HONOURS AT FUNERAL

The death occurred at the Military Hospital yesterday of Lance Corporal Herbert North of the 2nd Bn. Worcestershire Regiment. The deceased was brought ashore here about five weeks ago when bound for home, seriously ill, and was admitted to hospital. Despite all that could be done for him, he gradually grew worse and passed away yesterday.

The funeral with full military honours took place at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, yesterday evening, the Rev. H. C. Davies, M.C., M.A., Chaplain to the Forces, officiating. The escort of 50 rank and file, the firing party and the band, drums, the latter draped in black, of the South Wales Borderers were under the command of Lt. T. H. S. Gellatly.

Wreaths were sent by His Excellency the G.O.C., Major General C. E. Barrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., Lt.-Col. J. H. Pelly, Officer Commanding the 2nd Battalion the Worcestershire Regiment and All Ranks of the South Wales Borderers and the Corporals of the South Wales Borderers.

BISHOP HALL IN SHAMEEN

DEDICATION OF A TABLET

Canton, July 9. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Hall took the Sunday services in Christ Church, Shameen, yesterday. After the Holy Communion Service, he dedicated a tablet to Rev. C. I. Blanchett who had been Vicar of the Church for many years and who died last year. The tablet was erected by some of his many friends.

Bishop Hall gave a most interesting sermon at the 10.30 morning service on the frequent taking of the Lord's name in vain. The Church was better attended than usual, and those present hope that the Bishop will repeat his visit in the near future, when it is to be hoped that there will be an even better attendance.

Apart from the religious aspect, the Bishop is such a fine speaker and intellectual man that it is really worth while going to hear him. It is, moreover, refreshing to have something else to think of than bridge, dinner parties and the pictures.—Our Own Correspondent.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING

TWO CANADIANS ON TRIAL AT SEATTLE

Seattle, July 9. Two Canadians, Henry Reifel, the President of the Brewers and Distillers of Vancouver, Limited, and his son George Reifel were released under a $100,000 bond each, on a charge of smuggling large quantities of liquor into the north-west Pacific area.

The Government has also brought a civil action against the defendants claiming $17,250,000, for alleged evasion of Customs duties and taxes.

Mr. Samuel Whitaker, Attorney-General, who is in charge of the case, states that it will serve as a warning to distillers all over the world that the United States will not tolerate smuggling.—Reuter.

H. K. TENNIS PLAYERS AND MELBOURNE CENTENARY

MR. NORMAN BROOKES'S MISSION

SEARCHING FOR TALENT TO VISIT AUSTRALIA

LATE WIMBLEDON CHAMPION OFFERS INTERESTING VIEWS

WHY PERRY BEATS CRAWFORD

(By "Veritas").

Is Hongkong tennis talent of a quality worthy to appear in the Victorian Centenary celebrations this year? Unfortunately one feels compelled to reply in the negative.

Yet it is with the hope that Hongkong, together with other parts of the Orient will be represented in tennis at these centenary celebrations that Mr. Norman B. Brookes, President of the Australian L.T.A., and one of the past luminaries of the world of tennis champions, has arrived here.

Mr. Brookes, who is accompanied by his wife and two daughters (the latter first rate exponents of tennis), is not only on a holiday trip. He is blazing a trail through the Orient on behalf of the Victorian and Melbourne Centenary. He is visiting Manila, Hongkong, Shanghai and Japan with a warm welcome to all to send their best tennis players down to Australia this coming winter, there to vie, in sporting rivalry with some of the world's leading players.

Mr. Brookes who has seen Leonardo Gavia, Francisco and Guillermo Aragon, as well as Felix Ampon and Mauricio Zamora in action recently, was impressed with the form of the leading Filipino players. Gavia, who is now at his peak, was especially attractive.

Mr. Brookes is hoping to see Hongkong's best players on the court so that he can form his own judgment. Efforts will probably be made to stage unofficial matches sometime this week.

PERRY AND CRAWFORD.

Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Brookes referred in turn to the Davis Cup, Perry's peculiar influence over Jack Crawford, McGrath's chances of beating Perry in the Davis Cup, and the possible formation of a Far East zone of the Davis Cup.

Mr. Brookes was not especially optimistic regarding Australia's chances of winning the Davis Cup, but he said he did feel that they were good enough to make their way to the challenge round. Crawford, he felt, was clever enough to beat the Americans. He regarded the European Zone final against Czechoslovakia with perfect equanimity.

Offering a possible explanation as to why Perry had been so dominant over Crawford during the last twelve months, Mr. Brookes suggested that Perry forced Crawford to play a game foreign to his nature. Crawford always felt the necessity of indulging in careful tactics, and this cramped his game.

That was why he felt McGrath always had more chances of overcoming the English champion. McGrath invariably played a normal, care-free game, going all out for his shots, and refusing to be affected by any psychological influence.

Mr. Brookes confessed that the Australian L.T.A. saw no value in the Far East sub-zone of the American Davis Cup Zone, but they were distinctly interested in the formation of a Far East Zone on the lines of the American section of the International tournament.

Such a zone would mean a tremendous amount to Australia and Japan, but contemplation of it was part of the question until the Far East offered support.

A meeting of the council of the Hongkong Hockey Association will be held at St. Andrew's Church Hall on Tuesday, July 17, at 6.30 p.m. when the club business will be dealt with and a report and to fix a date for the annual general meeting.

CAREER OF A FAMOUS TENNIS PLAYER

Norman Brookes Man Who Took Wimbledon Title To Australia

Norman Everard Brookes, who was born in Melbourne in 1877, and is now President of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, was one of the greatest playing figures in the tennis world. With the exception of some coaching by Dr. W. V. Eaves, he was practically a self-made player, learning his tennis on a home court and the Melbourne cricket ground.

He played in his first tournament in 1891, and five years later represented Victoria against New South Wales. Altogether he played twenty times in Inter-State tennis matches.

His first important championship was won in 1902, when he lifted the Victorian title. This success was repeated in 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1911. The South Australia championship fell to him in 1906.

Going to England in 1905, he won the All-Comers singles at Wimbledon, beating S. H. Smith in the final. In the same year he captured the Kent Championship and South of England Championship, while with W. V. Eaves he won the Open Doubles at New-castle.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPION.

After this Brookes was one of the leading figures in Australian and English tennis. He went across to England in 1911 to win the Wimbledon All-Comers for the third time and also to re-capture the Wimbledon singles championship, which he first won in 1903.

To do this he beat Anthony F. Wilding in the final by three sets to love. At the same time he successfully partnered Wilding to win the Wimbledon doubles, and his run of successes in provincial tournaments was phenomenal.

Here is the beginning of the end of foreign-occupation of the world's heavyweight championship throne—the first knockdown of Primo Carnera by Max Baer. Picture, transmitted by radio photo from New York City to San Francisco, shows the giant Italian being stretched for a count of four in the first round of the battle that made a new champion. Referee Donovan is shown running forward as the Italian crashes down the ropes after a terrific right from the Californian's fist found Primo's chin.

PEN SKETCHES OF THE OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE CRICKETERS

(By R. Abbit).

The following are short sketches of the players who are now taking part in the Oxford v. Cambridge cricket match at Lord's.

OXFORD.

F. H. G. Calk, Uppingham and B.N.C.—Captain, a fourth year man. A batsman who though he has done well for the Varsity has never come off at Lord's as yet. Scores 1931—Ten; 1932—Seven; 1933—eight and nineteen not out.

D. F. Walker, Uppingham and B.N.C.—Got his blue as a Freshman in 1933, as a batsman. Made forty-six and four at Lord's.

D. C. H. Townsend, Winchester and New College.—A third year man who failed to get in in 1932. Top of 1933 averages with 33.63 but only made nine and three at Lord's.

R. G. Tindall, Winchester and Trinity.—A fourth year man who first got his blue in 1933, made ten at Lord's and took no wickets for nineteen runs.

A. Barlow, Shrewsbury and B.N.C.—Got his blue as a Freshman in 1932. Made 43 not out and took three for a hundred and eleven and one for twenty-eight at Lord's. Last year made four not out and took three for fifty-one.

J. W. Seamer, Marlborough and B.N.C.—Played in the Freshers' match 1933 and was tried once against Worcester—making thirty-three.

N. S. Bitchell-Innes, Sedburgh and B.N.C.—A brilliant schoolboy batsman who has done very well this year.

F. C. de Saram, Ceylon and Keeble.—Second year man who did little in 1933 but has batted brilliantly this year.

P. Singleton, Shrewsbury and B.N.C.—A Freshman who bowls very useful slow and can make runs.

J. H. Dyson, Charterhouse and Christ Church.—A second year man, who bowls slow left hand, was only tried once in 1933.

N. B. Knight, Uppingham and Wadham.—A second year man, tried once only against Leicester in 1933; the wicket-keeper.

CAMBRIDGE.

J. H. Human, Repton and Clare.—Third year, and Captain. He made four centuries for Cambridge and has made four so far this year. Can bowl slow left hand.

H. de W. K. Winlaw, Winchester and St. John's.—Third year. At Lord's in 1932 made 15 and 34, and in 20 in 1933. Made two centuries in 1933 and this year has four to his credit, including two in one match against Glamorgan.

A. W. Allen, Eton and Magdalen.—Got his blue in his second year, 1933, when he made 25 at Lord's, and before that hit a century for the Varsity.

M. Jefferies, Kisa, Leazes.—An All-Indian bowler, he got his blue as a Freshman in 1933 (scored 34 and took four for fifty-four and two for twenty-one at Lord's).

N. B. Knight, Uppingham and Wadham.—Never played in the Freshers' match so College uncertain but I think Pembroke.

J. G. W. Davies, Cambridge and St. John's.—Fourth year. Got his blue awarded in 1931 but crooked. Dropped in 1932. Got in in 1933 but only a log-break change bowler. Bowled Bradman for a duck.

A. G. Powell, Charterhouse and Magdalen.—Third year. The wicket-keeper and quite a useful bat.

A. G. Pelham, Eton and King's.—Got his blue in his fourth year after being on the fringe of the team all along. Good stock medium bowler, who makes good use of the new ball.

G. W. Parker, The Grange School and Solway.—Second year. Has done well for Gloucestershire. Just back from the Ruggar tour to America.

J. W. T. Grimshaw, King William School and Emmanuel.—Third year. (Continued on Page 5.)

AUSTRALIANS FACING DIFFICULT TASK

May Have Grim Struggle To Avoid Defeat By An Innings

THERE is a tide in the affairs of man—, maybe Woodfull the Australia captain is now quoting that time honoured proverb somewhat disconsolately.

For yesterday the Australian Test team were on the tide, and if it had been taken at the flood, it would have made them completely and irrevocably immune from defeat.

BUT the tide, which reached its flood at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, was missed, and Australia are now definitely confronted with the prospect of defeat.

AT 3 o'clock they were 316 for 3, with Don Bradman still to bat, and Woodfull and Darling going steadily, if not too strongly.

Three and a half hours later, the score board read 423 for 8. Five wickets for a bare 112 runs.

OF course, the explanation is that it became a Verity wicket. And this is not to be wondered at after two and a half days of use, and with the best part of 1,000 runs scored from it.

ONE is always prepared to give respectful consideration to a groundman's opinion, but an English wicket is an English wicket and it is seldom that one will stand up to such severe treatment without showing some signs of wear and tear.

THAT is why Australia will probably have very sticky time of it to-day.

IF the Aussies' two outstanding wickets fall quickly this morning, England will be heading for an innings win.

THE score card speaks volumes. It tells, in cold, unromantic, but dramatic, figures, the story of a decaying wicket.

ELIMINATE your pre-lunch cricket and what have you? Three wickets out of five to Verity, and another to Hammond. Up to three o'clock the Australians had batted with all the confidence in the world. But Darling's dismissal was the signal for some oppo. its cricket.

ONE does not overlook the handicap suffered by the Australians in the sickness of Bradman and Chappell. The effect on the invincible Don was to make him listless, indicating that his dismissal was only a matter of time. On the other hand Chappell was obviously in pain and merely stuck his hat grimly in the block.

BUT the fact also remains that three wickets fell for 45 runs, and turned the state of the game completely round.

INCIDENTALLY, although the English fielding was on the average fair, and tightened up considerably in the closing stages, there were some real blunders. One was costly. It meant no less than 78 runs being added to the Australian score.

Woodfull, a genuine left-hander, was out for a century before he had scored.

LATER Hammond dropped Bradman off a simple return, but

THE 'VARSITIES AT LORD'S

POWERFUL BATTING SIDES INDICATES DRAWN GAME

LUCK OF THE SPIN MAY MAKE ALL THE DIFFERENCE

(By R. Abbit).

The annual inter-Varsity cricket match between Oxford and Cambridge opened at Lord's yesterday. Unfortunately no scores have been received in Hongkong of the first day's play, but below I offer a resume of the teams' performances this season, suggesting their relative strength and weaknesses, and in an adjoining column, will be found sketches of the two teams.

Upon the records of the two sides as they stand before the great match, it would seem to be almost certain that a draw should be the result, assuming that the weather is equally fair to both. If there is a finish, I should incline to put my money on the side that wins the toss.

The fact is that both sides have a wealth of really good batting available, while their bowling is rather weak. On paper Cambridge have a better record than Oxford, as they won three games, drew five, and lost three, while Oxford won one game, drew seven and lost three. But I rather doubt if any great weight can be given to this.

Oxford lost a game to Surrey, which they could easily have saved, by a sporting declaration. Indeed, unless they really hoped to get Surrey out for one hundred runs in about an hour, they never could have won by the declaration, and Surrey had made four hundred and eighty-three in their first knock. As a matter of fact in bustling for the runs they did lose five wickets.

Cambridge on the other hand just got home against Worcester who had made two hundred and seventeen and then Cambridge had to get three hundred and fifty-three in the fourth innings of the match, and get them with a few minutes to spare, perhaps the win can escape the designation of lucky one.

THE GAMES IN DETAIL.

Before I review the matches in order, I must note that I have excluded two Oxford matches, against Oxfordshire and against Minor Counties. They do not, I think, rank as first class, and were treated by Chalk as trial matches as no old Blues took part. Both were drawn, in any case.

Oxford played seven matches at home and drew with Gloucester, Worcester, Yorkshire, Lancashire, Free Foresters and Leicestershire. They lost to the Australians by an innings and thirty-three runs. As a matter of fact, the Gloucestershire match should have been won easily if Chalk had taken a chance, but he was team-building rather than playing care-free cricket.

They then went on tour by which time the team is generally supposed to be more or less settled, anyway down to number nine, and lost to Sussex and Surrey by eight and five wickets respectively. Cambridge had drawn pretty handsomely with both counties. They then got together a bit and drew the M.C.C., scoring four hundred and ninety-seven in their first knock as a reply to the M.C.C.'s three hundred and ninety-three. They then went on to their last match, and only victory against Leicestershire's eleven, which they beat by eighty-eight runs. Unfortunately one does not know who were playing for the scratch team.

CAMBRIDGE.

The Light Blues, however, have had a rather more chequered career. They started off by getting a couple of hidings, but as it was Yorkshire, possibly smarting from their defeat of 1933—and the Australians, one can hardly wonder at a ten wicket and innings defeat. Then, however, they proceeded to beat Northampton by a hundred and fifty-eight runs and Glamorgan by ten wickets.

They then drew with the full strength of Notts—including Larwood and Voo—and a strong Free Foresters' eleven.

After this, going on tour they had the best of a drawn game with Sussex, a fairish draw with Surrey after an orgy of runs, and a victory against Worcester, to which I have already referred. There was a fairly level draw with Glamorgan—in which game Winlaw elected to score a century in each knock, and then they ended up by being beaten by the M.C.C. by a hundred and seventy runs.

SUMMARY.

Oxford 1934 won 1 drew 7 lost 3. Cambridge 1934 won 1 drew 5 lost 3. 1933 won 3 drew 4 lost 3.

These figures of course exclude the Varsity match each year. Last year it was a draw, in filthy weather, but Cambridge nearly won. This year it is very open. As I have said, Cambridge have a better record, Oxford have finished up on a winning note, while Cambridge lost their last game.

THE SIDES COMPARED.

If ever one says anything is a record at cricket, one is always wrong. But I venture to say that the number of first-class centuries that have been scored in first class cricket—(I include the three days Forester Matches) for the two Universities, if not a record, is very nearly one. Cambridge have scored thirteen, Human four, Winlaw four, A. W. Allen two, Bartlett, Davies, and Parker one apiece. Nine centuries have been scored for Oxford, F. C. de Saram claiming three, J. W. Seamer two and Mitchell, Innes, Walker, Chalk and R. G. Tindall one apiece. Last Year's totals were Cambridge nine, Oxford nine, making eighteen against this year's twenty-two. It proves that both sides have a great wealth of batting. And, again, a great many scores of well over fifty have been made. It would be difficult to say which side is the

as Don was out almost immediately afterwards, the effect was immaterial.

IT would, in fact, appear that this inspired Wyatt to call on the team for concerted improvement. Anyhow in the course of the next hour's play, Woodfull was smartly run out, Wyatt took a magnificent catch, and Amos dismissed Bradman behind the stumps.

ON the whole the day's play did not go too badly for Australia. Nevertheless it is of interest to note that they only added 287 runs to their overnight score, and lost seven wickets in so doing. Those figures suggest something.

AFTER lunch the visitors were definitely with their backs to the wall. To-day is almost certain to see them forced to resume this grim struggle. What ever advantage there be they are with the English team. We may very well see Nottingham re-elected, but with the ballgame changed.

FOUR WICKETS FALL FOR HUNDRED ODD RUNS

Manchester, July 9. The sky was cloudless when the Third Test match was resumed at Old Trafford this morning with a cooling breeze blowing. The wicket appears to be perfect apart from a spot outside the leg stump where W. J. O'Reilly, the Australian bowler, finished his run whilst bowling against England.

W. A. Brown and S. J. McCabe were loudly applauded when they returned to the wicket to resume Australia's innings of 180 for one wicket. Brown had made 64 and McCabe 65 on Saturday, the first wicket partnership having already yielded 102 runs.

Both batsmen settled down to patient cricket and gradually took the score to 230 when Brown was caught by Walters, rather easily at square leg off Clark, the first bowler. The Australian had made 72, the partnership yielding 195 runs. Brown had played patient cricket for 245 minutes.

W. M. Woodfull was the next batsman in and he was badly missed by Henderson before opening his score. After the total had been taken to 242 he lost McCabe who had been playing magnificent cricket and had reached 137 before being caught in the slip by Hammond off Verity. He gave an exhibition of all round cricket and collected 18 fours during the 215 minutes he was at the wicket.

Darling joined the Australian captain and they were still together when lunch was taken. Woodfull had scored 17 and Darling 10, the total being 285 for three.

The pair were still batting steadily and at three o'clock they had taken the score to 316 without being separated.

There were 30,000 spectators during the afternoon when Hopwood, the Lancashire bowler, tied up the batsmen who were playing steadily to avoid the follow-on. There was a spell when nine consecutive maidens were sent down to Woodfull and Darling.

Eventually England's bowlers met with success when Darling was out to Verity after he had made 37, the total then being 320 runs. Darling had been batting for 110 minutes and helped Woodfull to put on 78 for the fourth wicket.

Bradman was pale and drawn as he walked limply to the wicket to take Darling's place. He held up his end and had scored 25 runs when the players adjourned for tea. Woodfull had made 57 and the score was 373 for four wickets. Bradman was caught by Ames on a snick off Hammond when he had added a useful 30 runs.

Woodfull jumped for joy a few minutes later when Hammond missed a return catch. But his pleasure was short-lived for he was out when attempting a foolish single. He had a fine innings, with seven fours, playing a gallant 230 minutes. 409-73-0.

Oldfield went next, taken by Wyatt who made a wonderful catch, leaping sideways and taking the ball inches from the ground at silly mid-off. Verity was bowling. 411-7-13.

Chipperfield, brought from the sick room to bat, could hardly raise his bat from the crease. He was cheered sympathetically, and he was not out, with seven runs to his score at the end of play. Grimmett was with him for a time but Verity took his middle stump and dismissed him for a duck. 419-8-0.

O'Reilly came in and joined Chipperfield and had scored one run before the close.

Jury resulted, and the Club reached Taupo via Shatin at 1.15 p.m. without further mishap.

Here the bridge at the northern end of the village was crossed and the party turned right along the coast. The end of this motor road was soon reached, but the riders continued along the coastal path through the villages of Nam-Hang, Ha-Hang and Shun-Wan with its stony beaches, eventually halting at the small sandy beach near Ting-kok. Here refreshments and a bath were enjoyed, though the latter was partially spoiled by a large shoal of jellyfish which decided to utilize the cyclists' particular beach.

CAPTAIN OF HONGKONG CYCLING CLUB HAS NASTY UPSET

Heavy rain delayed the start of the Hongkong Cycling Club's week-end spin, a commencement eventually being made at 11.30 a.m. from the Vehicular Ferry. A rather poor attendance was augmented by the participation in the run of a small party of R.A.S.C. cyclists. A light rain continued for the early half of the ride, but this dispersed shortly after the bathing venue at Ting-kok had been reached. Considerable trouble was experienced throughout the ride in the form of punctures, due mainly to the ill condition of the roads. The first deflation took place almost at the commencement of the run, whilst the captain's puncture at five miles caused a nasty spill as he was cornering at speed when the deflation occurred. Fortunately, however, no serious injury resulted, and the Club reached Taupo via Shatin at 1.15 p.m. without further mishap.

Next Sunday Mr. C. Read (Captain) will again lead the party, the venue being Castle Peak, where a bathing picnic will be held. Bathing suits and refreshments should be carried on this trip which will commence from the Kowloon Pier of the Vehicular Ferry at 9.15 a.m. and should terminate at 4 p.m. All cyclists are extended a cordial welcome.

Those interested in the Launch Picnic of the Hongkong Cycling Club on August Bank Holiday are reminded that early application for tickets from the officials is advised in view of the large demand during the past week. The launch is due to leave Yaumatei Ferry's "Jordan Road" Wharf at 1 p.m. (sharp) and will call at Blake Pier, Victoria, at 1.15 p.m. The trip will conclude at 8 p.m. Refreshments are being arranged by the Club. Tickets at $2 each are obtainable from Mr. C. Read, 7, Fuk Wing Street, Shamshui, or Mr. H. A. G. Keates, R.A.S.C., Wellington Barracks.—Contributed.

MORE PUNCTURES.

The return to Taupo was made by the same track, the local pineapple plantations being inspected (but not ridden) on route. Several small Chinese temples were observed in this district and a run will be taken in a few weeks' time with the object of looking over some of these. A short halt was made at Taupo Market and a small stock of fruit was "taken aboard" before leaving at 4.45 p.m. for home. The sun was then beaming its first smile of the day on the hardy wheelers, but Dame Fortune was far from being so good-natured; two more punctures were collected near Shatin, though these had their silver lining in the fact that assistance was rendered by a couple of passing Chinese cyclists, thus proving that the comradeship of the road is common to cyclists especially, as even evident in the Far East.

Shamshui was finally reached at 6.45 p.m. after a speedy descent from the reservoir, a tired but immensely pleased party dispersing from that point. The attendance of the R.A.S.C. riders was greatly appreciated, and their cycling efforts were truly astonishing when it is considered that they were mounted only on hired machines. The members of the Club will be very pleased to welcome them again on any future run.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.

A great many people abuse the original forcing two of a suit bid. You know when you make a bid of two of a suit, you are placing an obligation not only on your partner, but on yourself, to keep the bidding open until game is reached.

Therefore, the only time a good player will make a two-bid is when he can absolutely make game, even though his partner's hand is trickless.

However, there is another bid which may be used with a big hand, and that is the original bid of two no trump. You should make

♠ Q J 5 3	♥ K 9 3	♦ None	♣ 10 9 7 3 2
♠ 10 8 5 2	♥ N	♦ 10 8 7 4	♣ 2
♠ 4 3	♥ 10 9 6 5	♦ W	♣ 8 7
♠ K 6	♥ A K 6	♦ A	♣ J 8 6 4
♠ A K 6	♥ A Q 6 4	♦ A K Q 6 2	♣ A
♠ A	♥ A	♦ A	♣ A

this bid only when you have a high card in every suit and in position to run off eight tricks yourself. In addition, I like to have a five-card suit headed by the ace, king, queen.

If partner has an absolutely trickless hand—that is, nine spot high—he is privileged to pass your two no trump bid, and with a little strength, he can show it. Then you do not get into trouble on these big hands.

The interesting part of to-day's hand, played by Herbert Fleischer and his partner, of Erie, Pa., is that the declarer is forced into a squeeze.

The Play

The jack of diamonds was opened by West, and Fleischer in the South won the trick with the ace. Of course, the first thing the declarer wished to do was to find if the heart suit would break. He knew that he must conserve his entries in his hand; therefore, he led the ace of hearts, and then a small heart, winning in dummy with the king. East's drop of the jack warned him that the heart suit would not break.

A small spade was won with the ace, and Fleischer decided to see if there was any chance of dropping the singleton king of clubs. He led the ace of clubs, and this plan failed.

Now he decided to cash his tricks, so he led the king of spades. West let go a diamond. Another spade was played and another diamond discarded by West. The trick was won with the jack, and the queen of spades was played, declarer discarding a diamond. West found himself squeezed. He could not let go the king of clubs nor a heart, so all he could do was to drop a diamond.

Of course, Fleischer now had to lead to his own hand and he cashed his three good diamonds.

To stop the declarer from making a grand slam, West must throw his king of clubs.

Today's Contract Problem

How should North and South proceed with the bidding to arrive at a three no trump contract? With West opening the queen of spades, can the declarer make his contract?

BRITAIN'S MILK SUPPLIES

VOLUNTARY CUTS IN IMPORTS

London, July 9.
Questioned in the House of Commons regarding the regulation of the imports of processed milk after June 30, Mr. Elliot, Minister for Agriculture, said that the Government of foreign countries mainly concerned in the United Kingdom market for condensed milk, for milk powders, and for cream, have been asked to arrange for a voluntary reduction of supplies as from 1st July, the reductions to be based on the imports during the corresponding period of the previous year. Australia, Canada and New Zealand had been asked to continue their cooperation in the reductions arranged when the schemes for the control of processed milk were first introduced, and arrangements were also being made to secure reductions in the imports of condensed whole milk and cream from the Irish Free State.—British Wireless.

GUARANTEES OF TRADE

LITHUANIA TO BUY BRITISH

TERMS OF NEW TREATY

London, July 9.
The commercial agreement between the United Kingdom and Lithuania which was signed on Friday in London will come into force ten days after the exchange of ratification for the period ending 31st December, 1936, after which it will be subject to denunciation at six months' notice on either side.

Lithuania obtains the benefit of most-favoured nation treatment for her exports to the United Kingdom, which is her most important market, and owing to the operation of other trade agreements this benefit is of considerable value to her.

No new United Kingdom tariff concessions are granted.

United Kingdom undertakings in the treaty with regard to agricultural products are in accordance with the Government's general agricultural policy.

Reductions in Lithuania customs duties, notably on coal, coke, herring, textiles, motor-cars and motor-cycles and iron and steel are granted and undertakings are given with regard to effect on the United Kingdom trade of the imposition and operation of import restrictions in Lithuania.

LITHUANIA GUARANTEES.

Lithuania undertakes that not less than 80 per cent. of her total imports of coal and 60 per cent. of her coke shall be obtained from the United Kingdom.

Lithuania undertakes to encourage the use of British ship-

PRISONER WHO ESCAPED

GAOLED ON TWO CHARGES

An additional charge of escaping from legal custody was preferred against Young Wai, one of the two men who escaped from the prison ward at the Government Civil Hospital last Friday night but who was recaptured, when he was again brought before Mr. Lee at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning.

The original charge against defendant was being found at night on the first floor of the Claremont Hotel, Austin Road, on July 5.

Detective Inspector Dorling told the Court that defendant was sent to the Government Civil Hospital after his arrest. He was placed in the prison ward, but at 7.30 p.m. last Friday he made his escape together with another man. He was recaptured before he could leave the hospital, being caught by the store-keeper near the Queen's Road entrance.

Defendant, it was stated, prised open the iron bars above the lavatory verandah.

On the charge of being found in the Claremont Hotel, defendant was sentenced to three months, and on the charge of escaping to four months, the sentences to run consecutively.
